U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau.
Toledo, O., July 29, 1892.

The area of high pressure which was central over the eastern Rocky mountain slope yesterday has moved east and south, and covers the entire central valleys.

The area of high pressure over the south Atlantic and Gulf states has remained stationary.

The barometer is low over the lake region and over the extreme northwest.

The temperature has fallen from 5 to 20 degrees over Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan; it has remained stationary in the south and east, and has risen from 5 to 10 degrees over the far west and northwest. The temperature will fall in the east during to-day and to-morrow.

Local rains have been reported from all sections of the country during the past 24 hours, which have been as a rule very light.

Generally fair weather prevails over the entire country except around the lake region, where it is cloudy and rainy.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity—On Friday fair, followed by rain; cooler. On Saturday, fair; cooler.

A needy woman —the one who's overworked, nervous, and debilitated. What she needs is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's made exactly to fit her case—an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nervine, giving tone and vigor to the whole system. But it isn't a mere stimulant. It's a legitimate medicine, that an experienced physician has carefully prepared, for woman's ailments. All the functional derangements, chronic weaknesses, and painful disorders peculiar to the sex, are corrected and cured by it.

And because it's a certain remedy, it can be made a guaranteed one. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, you have your money back.

You pay only for the good you get.

The best pill costs less than any other. Costs less, but does more. They're smaller, too, and easier to take. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best pills. They regulate perfectly the liver, stomach, and bowels.

Carnegie Claims There is Nothing to Arbitrate.

Reports of Threats Against the Non-Union Men.

The Big Mills Turning Out Armor Plate.

Private Iams Will Sue the Officers of Camp Black for Heavy Damages for the Treatment He Received.

Pittsburg, July 29.—Of the total number of Homestead strikers who have returned to work in the mill, about 125, it is said, every man received terrible warnings of dire punishment if he does not quit at once.

The men on going home have found sandbags tied to their doors every morning for a week past, and requests and warnings have been hung on the front knobs.

They have received letters through the mails which contain bloodthirsty threats of punishment for deserting the ranks of the strikers.

In addition to this, committees of the strikers have approached each man and personally warned him of his peril in remaining at work.

These threats have been reported to the Carnegie officials, who have promised protection inside and outside the works. The strikers have driven six foremen out of the best paying departments in the mill. The men earned about $12 a day each.

They were told to quit under penalty of being violently dealt with, but they stayed for a week.

Then when one of them was caught outside the mill he was severely beaten and he and the others were told they would be murdered if they did not leave.

The foremen left on Monday and was given by the officials ten days in which to return or their positions would be forfeited. Two returned, but they came a day late and were not employed.

The Rev. Mrs. Amanda Deyo, Universal peace commissioner, of Scranton, who came here as a representative of the universal peace union to settle the Homestead strike, will return to her home this morning and the strike will go on.

The attempt of the peacemaker was futile.

She secured, however, from all the Amalgamated association leaders, including President Weihe, a statement that they are willing to leave to a tribunal all questions at issue except the date of expiration of the scale, which must remain June 30, but the Carnegie officials asserted that they had nothing to arbitarte.

Mrs. Deyo went to Homestead again yesterday and talked with the strikers. They, too, favored submission of the trouble to a tribunal.

Mrs. Deyo said Belva Lockwood has written her offering to act as an arbitrator.

Mr. Frick.

A bulletin issued by Surgeon Litchfield, at 9 o'clock this morning, says:

"Mr. Frick passed a comfortable night and is resting easy."

Mr. Frick is doing more than that. He is now almost well. His wounds are almost healed and there is no trace of inflammation, nor has suppuration been noticed. He eats heartily, reads voraciously and sits propped up in bed. Daily the heads of departments report to him and practically the wounded chairman directs the conduct of the enormous Carnegie business.

The gas retorts in the Carnegie City Union mills were started this morning and will be increased in pressure until the mill is ready to start. There are about 150 machinists and repairers making repairs to both plants, which are nearly finished, and when Superintendent Dillon gives the word, both mills will be operated. Meanwhile the strikers stand idly by, and the company is prepared to fill both mills with non-union men at short notice.

More Non-Union Men.

Enough more non-union men were sent to Homestead last night and this morning to increase the number there to 900.

This morning the tug boat Tide took 75 men up the river to the Homestead mills. There have been no other departments started, but the entire plant with the exception of a couple of slab mills is doing business single turn.

Superintendent of Police Roger O'Mara will make no further charges against Anarchist Frederick Mulleck, arrested at Long Branch, as an accomplice of Assassin Berkman. He says one charge is sufficient to hold him. The superintendent ridicules the attempt to arrest him for kidnaping Mulleck by whom he calls "two cheap lawyers." He has the authority of the city of Pittsburg, and he says Mulleck came willingly. Besides this the prisoner was not in his custody until after they crossed the Pennsylvania line, being only with a reporter.

No further arrests of anarchists were made here this morning, but the police are vigilant. A search in Henry Bauer's rooms has revealed a pocketbook containing letters from August Spies, Nina Van Zandt, John Most, and other information as to groups and names which will be used as evidence. Bauer's possessions show him to be a member of the inner circles of anarchists. The police have a photograph, discovered in Bauer's room, of the man who was with Berkman just before the tragedy occurred in Mr. Frick's office. Berkman has made no further admissions in jail. It is said he will be defended by a fund to be raised among his New York friends.

IN CARNEGIE'S PRISON.

He Refuses to Pay Union Wages But Boards Non-Union Men Free of Charge.

Homestead, Pa., July 29.—An attempt to convert the non-union workmen in the Homestead mills to anarchistic beliefs and to incite them to leave the works has resulted in a failure.

A few days ago, some anarchistic literature was found among the workmen and an investigation resulted in the discovery that three disciples of anarchy were inside the big fence in the guise of mill workers. These men had been talking among the mill hands, but had apparently made no converts. Their literature was confiscated and they were dismissed from the employ of the company.

A United Press reporter was taken through the mills by Supt. Potter. He saw between 250 and 300 men at work. Mr. Potter said that 700 men were inside the works. They worked, he said, in two turns, and only the day force was on duty at the time. The workmen appeared to be a very intelligent class and there were few foreigners in the works, but Hungarians will be brought in to do a class of work that American workmen refused to do.

A number of the men are intelligent German mechanics, but a majority of the workmen are Americans.

A visit to the kitchen, bath house, laundry and dormitories showed that the statements by some of the non-union men who left the mill were exaggerated if not entirely without foundation.

The dormitories, or bunk houses, as they are called, are clean and neat, the kitchen was a model of its kind and the other arrangements for the comfort of the workmen were complete with every convenience.

The storehouses were filled with superior articles of diet. Mr. Potter said the men were boarded and lodged free and that a laundry has been established and is also at their disposal gratis.

The reporter saw six pieces of steel armor plate, each of ten tons, made yesterday in the armor plate mill. Three furnaces are going in open hearth mill No. 2, and one set of rolls is being operated in the armor plate rolling mill.

The press shop and the armor plate machine shop are also in operation.

Open hearth mill No. 1 is idle and will not be run until it has been renovated. These observations would apparently contradict the statements made by men who have left the mills concerning poor food, poor sleeping accommodations and a modified form of slavery. Mr. Potter said ten or fifteen non-union men had been discharged for incompetency and some of these had, he thought, started the stories of dissatisfaction among the workers.

A NEW SCALE.

Workmen in the Union Mill Will Be Asked to Ignore the Amalgamated.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 29.—The Carnegie Steel Co., limited, has prepared a scale for the union mills in this city and the Beaver Falls plant which the new men, or those of the former employes who return to work, will be required to sign. The scale will extend until January, 1894, and the wages will be the same as paid the Amalgamated workmen; but no association will be recognized.

The finishers, it is said, will profit especially by the new agreement. The fires have been started in the union mills, and work will probably be resumed in a few days. There have been no attempts made as yet to resume at Duquesne or Beaver Falls, and none will be made until the Homestead and the Union plants are in full operation.

The trouble at the Edgar Thomson works, Braddock, was settled by Manager Schwab, and the men have returned to work. The men in the transportation department struck for higher wages.

At the Homestead plant the force is being steadily increased. Nearly 100 new men were sent up on the Tide yesterday. An Associated Press representative went through the works this morning and found fully 700 men at work. The men are very intelligent, and not a few are college graduates, who, attracted by the reports of high wages in the steel works, prefer learning a trade to settling down to a profession for a livelihood.

No further informations were made to-day against the Homestead men and there were no more arrests. The eight strikers arrested yesterday for aggravated riot were all released on $2,000 bail each. The remainder of the 36 are still at large.

Wm. J. Brennan, Esq., counsel for the strikers, stated last evening that the proposed suits against Messrs. Frick, Potter and Lovejoy for conspiracy had not been abandoned, but nothing would be done until Mr. Frick had recovered.

A mass meeting was held at Duquesne yesterday, at which W. A. Carney, first vice-president of the Amalgamated association, was present and made an address. All operatives, including day laborers, were admitted to membership into the association, and the plant is now more thoroughly organized than any mill in western Pennsylvania.

It was reported last night that Jones & Laughlins, of the American iron works, had decided to take issue with the Amalgamated association, and that they would start their immense plan with non-union men. These works are among the largest in the country, and employ 3,500 men. Hon. B. F. Jones, the principal owner, is the ex-chairman of the national republican committee.

MULLECK IN JAIL.

The Long Branch Anarchist Behind the Bars at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, July 29.—Frederick Mulleck, Bergman's alleged arch-conspirator, is behind the bars at the Central police station. He came in on the limited from Philadelphia, at 9:45 o'clock, last night, in custody of Superintendent O'Mara.

Mulleck is the baker arrested at Long Branch, accused of complicity with Alexander Bergman in the attempt to assassinate Chairman Frick, of the Carnegie Steel company.

He it was who sent a sum of money to the would-be assassin several days prior to the shooting of Frick, and it is he whose relations with the most rabid anarchists of the country have got him in the meshes of the law. When Superintendent O'Mara arrived with his prisoner, a crowd of several hundred people, all eager to get a glimpse of the sallow-faced suspect, were in waiting, and followed the officer and culprit to the police station.

When seen by a United Press reporter Mulleck denied all knowledge of the plot to kill Frick. He admitted his friendliness toward Bergman, however, and even went so far as to confess that he had sent the latter the money referred to. He explained this by saying that Bergman had once loaned him money when he was hard up and he returned the favor.

Bergman wrote from Pittsburg for the loan.

He said he had known Bergman for some time, but had not seen him since last April. Mulleck claims that he has only been in Long Branch six weeks, and cannot explain how Frick's would-be assassin knew where to reach him by mail. In denying his connection with the plot, Mulleck said: "Bergman is a nihilist; I am a socialist, and do not believe in nihilistic principles. Bergman attended one of our meetings but was fired out."

Six or seven letters, all written in German, and several of them postmarked Pittsburg, were taken from Mulleck and turned over to the New York police for translation. Alderman McMasters said to-night that no additional information had been entered to-day by the Carnegie company against the strikers, and that no further arrests had been made.

A WARM RECEPTION.

Two Employment Agents Roughly Handled in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, July 29.—Two employment agents, supposed to be representing the Carnegie Steel company, were mobbd by workmen on South Diamond street last night. They had collected a crowd of mill men, idle because the iron scale has not been signed, and promised good wages for work on a new railroad, not located.

A rumor started that the agents were getting men for Homestead, and so enraged the mill men that they madly set upon the solicitors and gave them severe punishment. A detail of police was called and suppressed the riot.

RECEIVED SENTENCE.

London, July 29.—Parry Lunt, the defaulting manager of Raynolds & Gibson, cotton brokers, Liverpool, has been sentenced to four years' imprisonment, and John Wilson, the defaulting cashier, to three years' imprisonment, both at hard labor, on their plea of guilty to embezzlement.

JUMPED TO DEATH.

New York, July 29.—George D. Dartthols, aged 45, a lineman, jumped from a window in the Presbyterian hospital and was almost instantly killed, at 8 o'clock this morning.

TRIED TO ESCAPE.

Boston, July 29.—An unsuccessful attempt was made by seven convicts to escape from the state prison yesterday. When discovered they had succeeded in prying off a bar from one of the windows.

NELSON COOK DEAD.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 29.—Nelson Cook, a well-known artist, poet and portrait painter, died at his home here this morning, aged 75

ON THE RACK.

Singular Evidence of Barkeeper Buckenmeyer,

Who Counted as High as $50 Worth of Tickets.

Dan Carney's Testimony—Rich, Rare and Racy.

Bower Tells Why He Visited Bismarck's so Often.

The Testimony is About All in and the Board Adjourns, Subject to the Call of the Mayor.

The board of revision did a good afternoon's work yesterday. Mr. Coleman was not present, but Messrs. Emmick and Read saw to it that the examination of witnesses was thorough and searching.

As intimated in the Bee yesterday, Mr. Read sprang somewhat of a sensation when he placed Martin Buckenmeyer on the stand.

Buckenmeyer was brother-in-law and barkeeper of the late John Fein, better known as Bismarck, at whose saloon on St. Clair street the checks were alleged to have been cashed.

His testimony was extremely interesting. He swore that Bower was a frequent visitor at Bismarck's and that the proprietor and Bower had many financial transactions. They generally talked about checks, and he saw Bismarck with street department checks after Bower quitted the place.

"How many checks have you seen Mr. Bismarck handle at one time?" Mr. Read asked.

"Oh, I don't know—a good many."

"Did you ever count them?"

"No, Bismarck told me one time to count over the checks."

"What checks?"

"Checks the same as those," pointing to samples of Bower's time checks.

"And how many checks did you find?"

"I don't exactly remember the number of checks, but there was about $50 worth."

"Had Mr. Bower been in the place previously?"

"Yes, a short time before."

Bower, he said, was in the place every week and sometimes two and three times a week.

Buckenmeyer is a fairly intelligent and evidently honest young German. Mr. Southard was unable to shake the evidence in the cross-examination.

Buckenmeyer never saw James Kelly or John Lentner in Bismarck's place.

James Winans testified to the fact that Albert Lentner, the man whose name appears on Bower's books as John Lentner, had worked for him at various times during the past two years. Mr. Winans gave date and place, thus contradicting Bower's intimation that Lentner has been in his service continually for two years.

Lentner worked for him three weeks at a time, and would work elsewhere in the interim. He knew him to have worked for Wernert, the contractor, and for the Consolidated Street Railroad Co.

Frank Cahir, a paver, had worked almost continuously for Bower for three years. Did not know John Lentner or James Kelly. Had never worked as their substitutes.

Jacob Tanner, Bower's foreman, had never assumed the name of John Lentner or James Kelly. Had Lentner's name on the time-book as Albert Laetner, not John. Mr. Tanner was not able to throw much light on the subject under consideration.

James Hassett, another paver, did not know Lentner or James Kelly, and was a poor witness.

Thomas Gilday, a paver, was a more interesting witness. Had never worked under the names of Lentner or Kelly. Did not know them. Had bought three or four of James Kelly's tickets from somebody whose name he could not remember, and disposed of the same at a grocery. Never worked under the name of Lentner and Kelly and always got his own checks in his own name. Never sold a time check to Bismarck.

Gilday, it will be remembered, was one of the men mentioned by Bower in his evidence as one of Lentner's and Kelly's substitutes, yet Gilday emphatically denied having worked under either name or received time checks in their names.

Gilday is about the only "living" substitute, and yet he does not seem to have acted as a substitute to any great extent.

Herman C. Hahn, ex-cashier of the auditor's office, testified to several private marks in the official pay roll of the street department. The letters "B By." meant the checks so designated had been cashed in by the Buckeye brewery. Had never kept count of checks thus cashed by the brewery as there were very many and came in in bundles.

It transpired on the cross-examination that ex-Auditor Walker, on first taking the office, had abolished the system of having employes of the street department sign the pay roll.

Mr. Hahn referred, on leaving the stand, that the bogus report of his evidence as printed in the Blade the day previous was purely imaginary. The Blade stated that Hahn had been on the stand the previous day and gave alleged evidence in detail.

Mr. Hahn personally knew many of the employes of the street department, but to his knowledge had never seen either Lentner or Kelly.

James Horan, contractor, testified to the day and date of Lentner working for him during the past two years.

Miss Carrie L. Wolf, a clerk for Mr. Bower, was the next witness. She testified that she received the names of John Lentner and James Kelly from the yard foreman and entered the same on the pay roll. Never saw Lentner until the last week and did not know James Kelly at all. The time checks reached her in a book, and the only names thus given her were those of Lentner and Kelly. All others came through the regular channel, through Mr. Bower.

Foreman Kirkham gave her Kelly's and Lentner's time sometimes in the office and at others if he met her on the street. There was no secrecy about these transactions as far as she was aware.

Miss Elenore Baumback, another clerk in the commissioner's office, testified that she did not know James Kelly and had never seen Lentner until last Tuesday.

The investigation was then adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

To-Day's Session.

Mr. Coleman was not present at to-day's session either. His absence has been commented upon, particularly as he is the only democratic member of the board.

The investigation has revealed throughout a series of somewhat singular, not to say sensational, situations and conditions.

Daniel Carney, a paver, was the first witness, and he contradicted himself in the most remarkable manner.

It will be remembered that when Albert Lentner was on the stand he swore that he had been approached by Carney, who told him that if he (Lentner) swore that he had been employed by Bower two years continually that he (Carney) would bring witnesses and books to prove the contrary.

"What conversation had you with Lentner on this subject?" Mr. Read asked.

"I object to answer that question."

"You can't object. I demand an answer."

"Well, I don't remember."

"Why then did you refuse to answer?"

"I don't refuse to answer any straight questions."

"Mine was a straight question. Now why did you say that you refused to answer. Had you private reasons?"

"I don't believe I told Lentner anything."

"Did you speak to him at all?"

"That's my business."

"Well, it happens to be also my business and I want to know. Had you any conversation with Mr. Lentner on this subject?"

"I had."

"On what day was it?"

"I can't tell you."

"Was it not Thursday last, when he was leaving this room?"

"I believe it was."

"And you told him that if he swore he worked continuously for two years for Mr. Bower you could prove different."

"If Mr. Lentner says I said that it's all right."

"But did you say it?"

"That's for somebody to find out."

"Well, I happen to be that somebody. Come now, tell us if you told Lentner so."

"I did."

"Didn't you tell him you'd produce books to prove it?"

"How could I, when I never kept his time?"

"But did you tell him you could produce the books?"

"I believe I did."

"Are you working for Mr. Bower now?"

"I am."

"When did you commence working for him?"

"Monday morning last."

"You are doing some work in the alley back of Shaw & Kendall's, are you not?"

"How did you find that out?"

"Oh, I have kept track of you."

"You know Lentner?"

"I do."

"Do you know him to have been working for Mr. Bower?"

"I do."

Witness testified that he personally knew that Lentner had been working for Bower almost continually for two years. He afterward modified this, and said he was anxious to have the truth come out, even if he died for it.

"You stated, Mr. Carney, that you knew that Lentner worked for Bower?"

"Yes; and I swear it now."

"If you knew that, why did you tell Lentner that you could produce books to prove the contrary?"

"How could I produce them when I had not?"

"That's so; but why did you tell you could?"

"If Lentner said so it's all right."

"But why did you tell him so?"

"I assure you that he did work for Bower."

"That's not the question. Why did you tell him?"

"That's my business."

"Had you a particular object of your own in telling it?"

"If I had I wouldn't tell you." (Laughter.)

"What did Henry (Bower) say to you when he set you to work last Monday?"

"Nothing."

"What inducement did he offer you to suppress evidence here?"

"None."

"Had you not a promise of work?"

"No, sir; I had no promise. I am working for myself."

Mr. Southard, Mr. Bower's attorney, then took the witness in hand and cross-examined him severely.

"I understood you to say that in this case you are working for yourself. What do you mean by that?" Mr. Southard asked.

"I mean just what I said."

"Do you mean to say that you are now swearing to what is not true in order to get work and retain your job?"

"I do not. This is a put up job. I see that." (Laughter.)

Mr. Read—"What was said to you about $500?"

"Nothing."

"Nothing at all? Now—"

"No, nothing at all, and if I did get it I wouldn't tell you." (Great laughter.)

Mr. Read—"Well, I suppose it is not fair to examine on the strength of a rumor in this matter."

Mr. Herman Baumbach, one of Bower's bondsmen, was the next witness. He heard rumors he said, of the coming storm and started an investigation on his own account, as he was self-interested.

Mr. Bower told him that the names were not changed because one department lacked the money to run it. He was unable to find the substitutes. Kelly was dead, and he couldn't find a clue of his relatives. Hipple was dead and so was Hughes.

Mr. Baumbach seemed very earnest and anxious to find out the truth. He testified to a conversation he had with Lentner recently in Hockenberger's saloon in which he advised Lentner to tell the whole truth.

During Mr. Baumbach's testimony there was a hot passage of words between the witness and Mr. Kirkham over an unintentional statement made by the witness.

Lentner, he said, told him that Daniel Carney and Henry Hoerline had old him (Lentner) that he must not swear that he had worked for Bower all the time during the past two years.

Herman Henning, the next witness, said he was yard foremen for Bower. Lentner called often and got his tickets. Never saw Kelly. Three or four Kellys worked in the department. Bower, he said, told him to give Coher (a former witness) Lentner's checks.

"What was Lentner's first name?" Mr. Read asked.

"I called him John."

"And yet you have him down here (in time book) as August. Why did you call him John?"

"I call everyone John whose first name I don't know. I'm sometimes called John myself." (Laughter.)

Jacob Tanner was here recalled and his time book produced. Nothing of any special importance was elicited.

Mr. Bower again took the stand and was examined by Mr. Southard. The witness said he had been often at Bismarck's place. Never gave Bismarck tickets or handled tickets in the place. He visited the place sometimes two or three times a week. He went there after money due him. He sold Bismarck a home in May, 1890, for $1,100. Of this $400 was cash, and he got the balance of the money about three months ago.

Cross-examined by Mr. Read, Mr. Bower said he had repeatedly given Lentner's time tickets to Hipple and Coher. Didn't know how often, or where or when.

This finished the list of witnesses so far summoned, and the board adjourned subject to the call of Mayor Emmick.

LETTER FROM GROVER.

Appreciation of the Kind Wishes of Independent Germans.

New York, July 29.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland has written to Otto Kempner, chairman of the independent German-American citizens' meeting, as follows:

Gray Gables, Buzzard's Bay, Mass.,
July 26, 1892.

Otto Kempner, Esq.

"Dear Sir:—I thank you for the copy of the resolutions passed at a meeting of independent German-American citizens, held in the city of New York on the 13th inst. I also desire to express my appreciation of the kind wishes contained in your letter transmitting these resolutions. It is most gratifying to receive the assurances of support from a body made up of those who think independently in political matters, and who, in the language of your resolutions, 'are accustomed to place the welfare of the country above partisan considerations.' I fully understand the value of such support, and knowing full well the effectiveness and usefulness of effort on the part of our German-American citizens when aroused to action in any cause, I cannot but regard the assurances contained in your resolutions as of the utmost importance.

"Please assure your associates in this action of my gratitude and appreciation, and convey to them my determination to deserve the good opinion they now entertain of me.

"Very truly yours,
"Grover Cleveland."

To Form a Federation for Mutual Benefit and Protection.

St. Louis, July 29.—A morning paper says: "The coming week will, in all probability, witness the formation of the most powerful labor organization in America, with St. Louis as its birthplace.

This organization is nothing more nor less than the federation of the five organizations of railway employes and insures the active co-operation of in the neighborhood of 125,000 railroad men, operating the transportation department of every road in the United States and Canada.

The orders that will be included in the Federation are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Switchmen's Mutual Aid association and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. The strength of the Federation can be imagined when it is known that there are 30,000 members of the conductors' order, 25,000 firemen, 25,000 engineers, 30,000 trainmen and 21,000 switchmen that will be included in the membership of the organization.

The initial step toward forming this stupendous aggregation of railway employes have already been taken and are heartily sanctioned by the members of the several orders that will be numbered in its fold.

TO HIDE HER SHAME.

Wronged Girl Seeks Seclusion in Death.

St. Marys, O., July 29.—(Special.)—Miss Ella Delashmutt, of Cridersville, near here, committed suicide near Troy, Miami county a few days ago by hanging herself.

Sensational developments revealing the cause of her action were disclosed yesterday by the finding of several letters. In one of which she charges a prominent young man of Celina with being her betrayer.

The unfortunate girl was led astray under promise of marriage and she gave her betrayer considerable money which he recklessly spent.

Other letters in which she narrated her troubles were found.

One was a request of her sister to bury her beside her father, who was a wealthy and prominent farmer.

WILL WANT DAMAGES.

Dr. George Arrested for a Thief.

He Was a Member of the Swiss Legation and Demands Reparation.

Baltimore, July 29.—A charge of theft preferred against Dr. Albert George, an attache of the Swiss legation at Washington, may lead to international complications.

Dr. George was among the excursionists from Washington to Bay Ridge Wednesday. He was standing near the dairy lunch counter when Mrs. W. D. Borde, of Baltimore, came up to make a purchase.

When she wanted to make payment she found that her purse was missing. She called an officer and had Dr. George arrested. After a hearing he was discharged.

Mrs. Borde subsequently found that she had left her pocketbook on a bench where she had been sitting. Dr. George has complained to the state department and the matter will be investigated. The arrest of Dr. George was contrary to international law and he will probably claim and obtain heavy indemnity.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

There Seems to be a Feeling That Rioting Will Again Occur.

Homestead, Pa., July 29.—Several incidents occurred recently going to show the temper oft he locked-out steel workers, and makes plain the fact that thecondition of affairs it not entirely changed.

The withdrawal of so many troops has given some of the hot-headed men among the workmen an idea that they now have more liberty to forcibly prevent the coming of non-union men to the works.

Forty-five non-union men were placed in the Homestead works this morning. The 28-inch mill was started to-day and men are being familiarized with the workings of the cogging and new beam mills, preparatory to starting them.

Many of the non-union men in the mill have received letters, threatening them with personal violence unless they leave the employ of the company. This morning the following notice was found inside the works:

'Homestead, July 29, 1892—Notice: All non-union men desiring to leave Carnegie's works without delay will be provided for by the union men of Homestead, but all who stay at work will seek his God. All are being spotted. Beware."

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

An Old Man Kills His Neighbor and Then Commits Suicide.

Albany, N. Y., July 29.—A special from Chatham, N. Y., says: James Reilly, about 60 years of age, a Boston & Albany flagman, shot and stabbed Thomas Kildary, a neighbor aged 70 years, at 7:30 this morning and then went to his own house and committed suicide, shooting himself twice and cutting his throat from ear to ear.

Kildary is still alive but very faint hopes are entertained of his recovery. The murder was evidently premeditated and an old family feud is the cause.

STILL FILIBUSTERING.

The House Trying to Kill Off the World's Fair Bill.

Washington, July 29.—2:05 p. m.—The house is now engaged in filibustering against the world's fair appropriation, with no indications of a break in the deadlock.

WILL LET ENGLAND SETTLE IT.

Kingston, Ont., July 29.—Minister of Customs Bowell is quoted as saying that in view of the passage of the retaliatory bill, respecting canal tolls, by the United States, the Canadian government will not retaliate nor change the present rates on grain for Europe, but will refer the matter to the British government, charging that the United States is violating a treaty.

IT WOULD BE TWO-EDGED.

Montreal, July 29.—Assistant General Manager Wainwright, of the Grand Trunk railway, says he thinks that the retaliatory policy proposed by the United States, if carried into operation, will injure the Western and New England States more than it will Canada.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

New York, July 29.—Samuel Knight, aged 45, a manufacturer of shoe uppers, residing at No. 8 West Fourteenth street, either fell or jumped out of a third story window of his residence early this morning and was instantly killed.

HAVE JOINED ISSUES.

People's Party and Silverites Unite.

Colorado Takes Action After Much Debate.

A Full Ticket Nominated on a Yard-Wide Platform Warranted Not to Rip, Ravel or Bag at the Knee.

Denver, Col., July 29.—The people's party state convention concluded its work shortly before 7 o'clock last evening, and the ticket nominated was taken from the list of names recommended by the joint conference committee of the Silver league and the people's party. The Silver league convention did nothing yesterday but adopt the report of the conference committee and await upon the action of the people's party meeting. It will meet this morning and will without doubt ratify yesterday's ticket of the people's party convention.

The convention was slow in getting into session. Delegates began to straggle in shortly after 9 o'clock, and it was nearly two hours later before all were present.

Spectators, however, were out in force and occupied nearly every seat in the gallery and the rows behind the convention seats. The women delegates were early in their places.

When Chairman Pratt finally called the convention to order, the hall was crowded and there was very little standing room.

Mr. Pratt explained that the delay in calling the convention to order was owing to a desire to know the silver convention's action on the conference committee's report. He then explained that the report had been adopted. This report, he said, was the order of business for the day.

Delegate Phelps, of Arapahoe, moved that the report of the conference committee lay on the table until reached and the regular order of business be proceeded with. The motion prevails and the report of the committee on resolutions was called for.

The committee presented the following platform, which was adopted:

The people's party of the state of Colorado, in convention assembled, declares that in the preamble, resolutions and platform of the people's party as adopted at Omaha July 4, 1892, it recognizes a declaration of war by the producing classes against all forms of legislation which enables any man to exploit the labor of another; and understanding that platform in this spirit, and desiring to bring about a practical brotherhood of men which shall recognize unity of interests, as opposed to the present methods of licensed arrogance and individual and corporate greed, it pledges the people's party of this state to be a loyal, cordial and unfaltering support of the declaration of the Omaha convention as a whole, and designates as of primary importance at this time to the people of Colorado, that portion which declares for the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold on a ratio of 16 to 1.

Further be it resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that our senators and representatives in congress are not in accord with the best interests of Colorado and her people, in advocating the election of the enemy of silver to the office of chief magistrate of the United States.

In conclusion it is resolved, as was also resolved at the national convention at Omaha July 4, that no person holding office or position of trust or profit under the federal, state, county or municipal government shall be eligible to sit or vote in any convention of this party.

Through an oversight on the part of the resolutions committee, the women suffrage plank was omitted from the platform. A great howl was raised by the ladies present, and they were seconded by many of the male delegates. As no way of correcting the mistake presented itself, the matter was dropped.

The reference to Colorado's representation in congress supporting silver money was received with the wildest cheering. It was evident that the convention was not in favor of Senators Teller, Wolcott and Representative Townsend's action.

Delegate Harmon, of Arapahoe, spoke on the wants of the Denver Trades assembly and presented a resolution for the protection of the laboring classes, which was adopted. Among these resolutions was one that the state shall close the sale of all coal lands, and hold the same and operate them in the interest of the people.

The convention then took a recess until 1:30 p. m.

Upon reassembling G. W. King offered a resolution that a law be passed declaring void the law requiring all contracts to be paid in gold. This resolution was voted down.

A committee of three was appointed to wait upon the candidates whose names had been presented by the joint conference committee and escort them to the platform, where they should expound their positions in regard to the people's party platform.

Julius Thimpson and David H. Waite, the two candidates for governor, the presidential electors and the candidates for state offices came forward one after the other and declared themselves in accord with the people's party platform. After these declarations had been finished, the work of nominating and balloting began. The formal result was the selection of the following ticket:

For Presidential Electors—J. C. Higley of Weld, I. G. Berry of Montrose, A. J. Overholt of Peffer, Silas Hanchett of Clear Creek.

For Governor—D. H. Waite of Pitkin.

For Lieutenant-Governor—D. H. Nichols of Boulder.

For Attorney-General—Eugene Engley of Hinsdale

For Secretary of State—M McLease of Mesa.

For Treasurer—Albert Nance of Arapahoe.

For Auditor—Wm. Goodicountz of Montezuma.

For State Regents—D. M. Richards and W. E. Anderson, both of Arapahoe.

Of the presidential electors, Berry, Higley and Overholt are original Farmers' alliance men and Hanchett is a silver republican.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

Cook County Has Lucy Parsons for a Delegate.

Chicago, July 29.—The Cook county convention of the people's party was held at Uhlich's hall last night. Mrs. Lucy Parsons and a few other women were among the 246 delegates.

Chris O'Brien was appointed temporary chairman. In his speech he referred to the Homestead strike as an invasion of a peaceable town by a "gang of thugs, thieves and barroom loafers for the purpose of driving peaceable citizens from their homes."

C. G. Dixon, permanent chairman, scored the press for having, as he said, vilified the people's party in the past. He said that while the people's party discovered 10 years ago that the Pinkertons should be done away with, other parties and the press had just awakened to the fact. He charged that Chicagoans who have big capital are paying proportionately one-tenth of the taxes that common men have to pay.

The platform adopted denounces the Pinkertons and indorses union labor.

IAMS WILL SUE FOR DAMAGES.

Pittsburg, July 29.—Three actions will be brought against General Snowden, Lieut.-Col. Streator and Col. Hawkins, by ex-Private Iams by reason of his treatment at Camp Black, one of which will be for assault and battery, one for conspiracy to defame, and one for trespass, and damages in $10,000 will be claimed.

THEY CHEERED THE BULL

As He Gored His Antagonist to Death.

Sickening Sight Witnessed by Five Thousand People in a Mexican City

San Luis Potosi, Mexico, July 29.—A sickening accident occurred here Wednesday night at a bull fight witnessed by electric light in the new ring near the limits of the city.

There were fully 5,000 people present, among them being a number of American ladies and gentlemen tourists. The matador, Alberto Limertura, was in the act of giving the third bull a fatal thrust with his short sword, when he slipped and fell. The frenzied bull had him on his horns in a moment and was goring him ferociously when three of the banderilleros rushed to the rescue.

The flaunted their scarlet cloaks in front of the bull a number of times without attracting his attention from the fallen matador.

Suddenly he charged upon one of the banderilleros, overtook him and caught him upon the sharp points of his horns, which penetrated entirely through the man's body.

The crowd was wild with excitement, the Mexicans cheering the bull for its grand fighting qualities, and when the bugle sounded the call for the lassadores to come in and throw the mad animal to be killed the spectators protested vehemently against such action.

The dead body of the banderillero remained on the bull's horns until the animal was killed.

Limertura, the matador, died while being removed from the ring. The performance was then stopped by the police authorities.

BIG MILLING COMPANY.

A Consolidation of Flour Mills Representing $7,500,000.

New York, July 29.—Circulars sent out by the Hecker-Jones-Jewell Milling company, the $7,500,000 corporation into which the flouring mills of this vicinity have been gathered, give some details of the consolidation in addition to those which have recently been printed. The vendor's statement sets forth that the five mills acquired have a capacity of 9,000 barrels of flour a day, and in addition manufacture a number of food specialties. The real estate and buildings and water fronts and wharves, exclusive of machinery, occupied by these mills have been appraised by Richard V. Harnett at $3,004,0000. The machinery, fixtures and appliances used in the manufacturing, merchandise, stores and manufactured goods on hand, together with cash in bank are valued at $2,800,000. The patents, brands, and good will are part of the property acquired but are not included in this valuation. The statement also says:

"The books of the companies have been examined, and the average net profits for the last five years have been over $500,000 per annum. In the opinion of the vendors, by the operation of this consolidation of their interests into one company the net profits will be increased at least $200,000 per annum."

It is announced that all the common stock, $2,000,000, and the 6 per cent. bonds, $2,500,000, as well as $2,500,000 of the $3,000,000 preferred 8 per cent. stock, have been subscribed for.

STAMPED TO DEATH.

Terrible Punishment Inflicted on an Alleged Slanderer.

Broken Bow, Neb., July 29.—At Retto Wednesday night Robert Frazer attacked Charles Stout and stamped him to death. Stout had, it was claimed, circulated a slanderous story about Frazier, and the latter approached Stout and remarked that he had a settlement to make with him.

At once he struck Stout, and knocked him down on the floor, where he jumped upon him with his feet, stamping in his breast, head and face in a most vicious manner. His victim did not regain consciousness. Frazier is still at large. Both are well known farmers.

THE CATTLE WAR.

Only the Leaders Will Be Tried for Champion's Murder.

Laramie, Wyo., July 29.—There are the best of reasons for believing that all the prisoners detained here who were concerned in the Johnson county invasion with the exception of about eight will never be tried on the charge of murdering Nate Champion.

The cases against 35 of the men will probably be nolled, and only the organizers and leaders of the expedition will be called before the bar. These 35 will comprise mostly the hired army. It is expected that the prisoners will be taken to Cheyenne to-morrow.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

One-Third of a Lumber Town Destroyed by Fire.

Sisson, Cala., July 29.—For two hours yesterday afternoon fire raged in this town, which lies at the foot of Mount Shasta. Sisson is a lumbering town, with one main street lined by cheap wooden buildings which melted under the flames like houses of cards.

One building was blown up by dynamite and this checked the flames. Otherwise the town would have been destroyed. As it was, one-third of the village, including the principal houses and a dozen or more dwellings, were burned, entailing a loss of $75,000.

The value of a good name was well exemplified the other day, when a man asked one of our druggists for a bottle of Sarsaparilla. "Whose?" inquired the clerk. "Whose? why, Ayer's, of course. Ye don't suppose I'm going to run any risks with Hannah, do ye?"

HAWAII'S DEMON TREE.

The Strange Story of a Man-Eating Vegetable.

The Experience of an Inquisitive Englishman Who Ventured too Near—The Prayers of Pili.

In the latter part of the year 1867, says E. Ellsworth Carey, in the Honolulu Advertiser, I was commissioned by the Belgian government to find a certain rare wandering plant that was believed to grow on the higher slopes of Mauna Kea, a large extinct volcano situated on the northern part of Hawaii. I had a station built on one of the wooded slopes of the mountain, far away from any other habitation. My only companion was a native who had lived all his life on this part of the island. About twice a month he would visit the seacoast to obtain needful supplies for our camp. This native, who said that his ancestors vere "big chiefs," whose bones lay secretly buried in caves on the mountain side, was very old, although he could climb canyons and scale lava-cliffs with wonderful agility.

During one of my botanizing excursions I passed by the mouth of a narrow canyon or gorge, and asked Pili, the old native, if he had ever explored the same. Pili suddenly became interested in his pipe, and didn't know anything about the gulch and did not understand what I said. This was rather strange in Pili, for natives generally know every rock and tree in the section where they live, and I knew Pili was lying when he said he did not understand me.

So, naturally, I determined to examine into the mysterious ravine. Some time after this, I was walking with Pili down a gentle slope, when I saw a number of bones. Pili stopped. He walked back a few rods and sat down on a stump. Not a word would he say. I began examining the bones and for two hours or more puzzled my brain over a problem as I had never done before. What I found was this: A circular area of about 100 yards in diameter thickly covered with the bleached remains of birds, animals and human beings. These ghastly relics were scattered among the shrubs and grass. The larger bones were near the center; in fact, I found that the bones became gradually smaller as I approached the periphery of this circular boneyard. In the center of the circle was a well-like opening in the ground, from which emanated a sickening odor. No vegetation grew within fifty feet of this cavity. How came this hole with its horrible stench? How came these bones here? How came they to be arranged about the central opening? These questions continually presented themselves, but they remained unanswerable. A deep mystery seemed to hang over the spot. It was growing dark. I heard Pili calling and hurried to him. He pointed in terror to the center of the bone-covered area. A shadow was thrown on the scene by a rising bank of clouds. But I declare that I saw rising from the pit a visible vapor, a column of visible fog or smoke or gas that was luminous. Spell bound, I gazed at the spectral column. Near the ground it had the appearance of a phosphorescent flame and gradually became fainter as it ascended. Your imagination will have to picture the unearthly phenomenon. Pili pulled at my arm and in silence we left the spot, and we did not loiter by the wayside.

As I was looking for a simple plant, and not blood-curdling manifestations, I was inclined to break camp and leave. But by morning my nerves were in better order, and I went back to the scene of the evening adventure. I could find no clue to the mystery, and the matter gradually went out of mind as I prosecuted my labors.

But I had occasion after a time to visit a spot near where I had seen the canyon about which Pili was so apparently ignorant. One evening I made known my intention to Pili to return to the place and to explore the gorge.

"When?" said Pili.

"In the morning," I replied.

Without a word the old native arose from his mat on the floor and departed. He was gone all night. He returned by sunrise, bearing on his shoulders a bundle. When we reached the canyon he stopped and unpacked his load. I saw a stone idol, curious in shape; he placed it on the ground, and then took a small pig from his bundle. Making a fire, he sprinkled something in the flames, muttered strange sounds and made symbols in the air with his fingers. The animal offering was placed before the idol. After he completed his strange rites he said that I might never come back, but he had done what he could to preserve my life. He would wait until the going down of the sun, and then, if I did not come back, he would wail for me as did his fathers long, long ago, when a son fell in battle. Then he sat down, covered up his head and was silent.

All this made me feel uncomfortable. The natives of the Hawaiian islands are supposed to be Christianized, but in time of danger or trouble many often turn to the discarded gods of their fathers. I knew Pili believed that great danger awaited any one who ascended the ravine. But I went. I had gone about a mile, when over the tops of tree ferns I saw a waving mass of sea green foliage undulating in the wind. The object looked like a huge bunch of thick-leaved seaweed and the peculiar motion of the same arrested my attention. I was over 300 feet away from the curious object, and hurried to obtain a closer view. A wall of fern-covered lava about 10 feet high stopped my course. Climbing up so that I just could see over the edge I saw an object such as the eyes of civilized man never before beheld. Imagine a bunch of seaweed about 12 feet high; the edge of each bunch lined with fine streamers which radiated in all directions and trembled like fine wire spirals; the whole object moving like the fringe of a sea anemone.

I was wearing a heavy felt hat with a wide brim, and I pushed it back from my forehead to get a better view. As I moved my arm the strange object ceased quivering, and every vibrating antenna or streamer pointed directly at me. Just then my foot slipped from a jutting rock on which I was standing and I fell, but not before something cleaved the air with a horrible hissing noise and struck on my hat crown. I felt the force of the blow as I fell, and knew no more for a time. I regained consciousness after a short time and lay in a partial stupor. The wall above me was stripped of its verdure and I saw a long sinewy, snake-like object writhing, twisting and curling on the rocks. It had missed its prey, and a low angry hum filled the air.

AT PUBLIC AUCTION.

Lord Spencer's Valuable Library to be Sold.

Decline in the Rentals from His Estate Has Forced Him to Make the Sacrifice.

London, July 29.—The portion of the Althorp library which Lord Spencer has been obliged by his circumstances to dispose of, was sold yesterday at private sale to an Englishman whose name has not been given to the public, and who will, it is understood, dispose of the books at public auction.

The portion of the library sold is the [illegible] of the collection, which is said to be unsurpassed in value and excellence.

It includes the contents of the square room at the south end of Althorp house, which has given the library its world-wide fame.

It is said that there never has been in England a private collection of books equal to it. The collection includes 57 Caxtons, 600 Aldines, block books, early Bibles, first editions of the Greek and Latin classics, etc., and the beginning of printing in Holland, Germany, Italy and Flanders.

Lord Spencer has been forced to part with his treasures by the decline in the rental value of his estate, which has seriously impaired his income.

LIGHT FOR WAPAK.

Wapakoneta, July 29.—An election was held here to vote on the propositions of issuing bonds for the construction and operating of electric light works. The proposition carried by a vote 322 to 83. The water works question carried at a recent election, and the town will soon be operating its own waterworks system and electric light works.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

Horse Racing, Prize Fighting and Ball Playing.

Cleveland, O., July 29.—In spite of the intense heat the attendance at yesterday's grand circuit races was large. The track was fast and good time was made. It was favorite dyy in all respects. Louisville, Ky., July 29.—When the change was made in the base ball club here by which Pfeffer was made manager and captain, it was agreed that Pfeffer should have absolute control, and should be allowed to show what he could make out of the team. He was given till August 15 to be entirely free from interference. There is some complaint that the team is not winning; but the directors will stand by their contract and do nothing until the time has expired.

We, the Oklahomas, would like a game with the Heroes or Troys for Sunday afternoon, July 31, on the Auburndale grounds, for $2.00. If accepted answer through the Bee.

BURNING OIL.

Lightning Strikes a Tank Containing 27,000 Barrels.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 29.—During the prevalence of a thunder storm which swept over the southwestern oil field Wednesday afternoon, lightning struck tank No. 17, of the Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Line Company, six miles from Washington. The tank contained 27,000 barrels of oil and when it burst the burning fluid spread to twenty tanks in the vicinity and soon all were afire.

The conflagration was still raging at 10 o'clock this morning, notwithstanding the efforts of 300 men, who have been fighting it since yesterday afternoon. The heat is so intense that trains could not approach within an eighth of a mile of the scene, and passengers on the Washington branch of the Panhandle Railroad were unable to reach their destinations last night. The loss is not known, but will be very heavy.

THE LADIES.

The pleasant effect and perfect safety with which ladies may use the California liquid laxative Syrup of Figs, under all conditions, makes it their favorite remedy. To get the true and genuine article, look for the name of the California Fig Syrup Co., printed near the bottom of the package.

WAKE UP.

If you wake up in the morning with a bitter or bad taste in your mouth, Languor, Dull Headache, Despondency, Constipation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. It corrects the bilious stomach, sweetens the breath and cleanses the furred tongue. Children as well as adults sometimes eat something that does not digest well, producing Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Restlessness, or Sleeplessness—a good dose of Regulator will give relief. So perfectly harmless is this remedy that it can be taken by the youngest infant or the most delicate person without injury, no matter what the condition of the system may be. It can do no harm if it does no good, but its reputation for 40 years proves it never fails in doing good.

Reduced Rate Procured for Knights Templar

Who Want to go to Denver—Solicitor Read on Impeachment—Funeral of J. N. Stevens—Other Matters.

ALLEGATIONS DENIED

In the Cases of Thomas Sweeney and Frank Mamment.

Answers were filed in common pleas court to-day in the cases of Thomas Sweeney and Frank Mamment against the city of Toledo, the Consolidated Street Railway company and the Lake Shore Railway company, by the latter defendant. A general denial of allegations set forth in the plaintiffs' petition is made.

THE IMPEACHMENT.

Proceedings May Be a Go, According to the City Solicitor.

There is still a probability that impeachment proceedings against the indicted councilmen will be pushed. Solicitor Read in conversation with a Been on the subject this morning said:

"If there are any citizens who are willing to sign the affidavit and have been indisposed to do so on account of security, they can now come forward, as that obstacle has been removed. A gentleman of ample responsibility approached me this morning and volunteered to personally give security for the costs in the case."

WE GET A CUT.

The War of Rates Makes the Denver Trip Cheaper.

Toledo commandery's committee arranging for the Templar conclave at Denver early next month, have issued another circular called out by the war of rates among the railroads. The fare has now been reduced so that it will not exceed $60 for the trip, which includes board, sleeping and use of train for ten days. An appeal is made for an early response from those desiring to attend, and it is hoped answers will be at once forwarded.

DR. JOHN DAVIS

Comes to Toledo and Turns Out to be a Horse Thief.

Dr. John Davis, a nattily attired young man, sporting a shining plug hat, was arrested on suspicion several days ago by Detectives Carew and O'Brien. He drove a high-stepper and a swell buggy. The detectives stamped him for a horse thief and struck it right. This morning it was found that the horse and buggy was stolen from James E. Scott, of South Bend, Ind. Sheriff Ward came on and took the doctor away with him. He is also wanted in Chicago for his misdeeds.

FUNERAL OF J. N. STEVENS.

It Occurred from the Masonic Temple This Afternoon.

The funeral services of the late John N. Stevens were held at the Masonic temple at 4 o'clock this afternoon, with Eminent Commander Henry W. Bigelow in charge. The beautiful ritual of the Knights Templar was impressively rendered, there being a large attendance of the deceased's associates and friends. Mr. Stevens was one of the oldest Masons in the city, and had a circle of acquaintances possessed by few. He spent a life of usefulness as citizen and business man, and will be remembered for his many good deeds.

NEW PNEUMATIC TIRE

To Be Made of Leather That Will Not Puncture.

George Latulip, of Syracuse, has invented a leather pneumatic bicycle tire. He has for a number of years been employed in the raw hide business, and conceived the idea of making a bicycle tire of this article. W. B. Nye, of the Syracuse Cycling club, was one of the patentees, and is now a member of the firm which will manufacture the tires. The invention consists of the use of rawhides between the inner and outer tubes. The tire will be seamless and be 1-16 of an inch in thickness. A machine equipped with these tires will weigh less than a pound more than if the ordinary tire was used. The pneumatic tire manufacturers throughout the country have labored in vain to bring a tire into market that would not puncture.

STREETS AND SEWERS.

Improvements Ordered and Sewers To Be Constructed.

Several council committees held their seance last evening.

The committee on streets acted upon the ordinance referred back from the council for the improvement of Washington street from Lawrence avenue to Collingwood avenue. The ordinance as passed by the council required that the improvement be paid for in two installments. It seems the property owners understood that it should be paid for in five years, and a repeal of the ordinance was asked. The improvement of Bancroft from Monroe to Smead avenue involves the same question. The committee extended the time to five years.

Ordinances were approved for the improvement of the alley between Washington and Bartlett, extending from Nineteenth to Twenty-second street; for the improvement of Leonard street from Nevada to Federal streets; Nevada street from the Belt railway to the city line; McDonald street from Germania to Forrer; Union street from Johnson street to Woodruff avenue; Fifteenth street from Washington to Monroe; Second street from Oak street to the west side of Cornwall addition.

The following resolutions were approved by the sewer committee: To construct a sewer in Columbia street, from the Maumee river to the alley between Erie street and Summit avenue; to direct the city engineer to issue permit to drain lots 41, 42 and 43, Mott's addition, into the sewer in Monroe street; to construct sewer in Fourth street from the sewer in Cherry street to Starr avenue and Cherry street; to construct a sewer in Fifth street between Starr avenue and Cherry street; to construct a sewer in Fifth street between Starr avenue and Cherry street; to construct a sewer in the alley between Logan and Harrison streets from Oliver to the alley west of Broadway; to construct a sewer in Euclid avenue from Nevada street to within 130 feet from the southern boundary line of Starr avenue; in Michigan street from sewer No. 23; in Locust street to Elm street; in Second, Platt and First streets a sewer to extend to Oswald street to Bridge street; in Wabash street from the sewer in Fifteenth street to a point within 120 feet of the east line of Division street; to construct a sewer in the alley between South and Boyd streets from the sewer in Stebbins street to a point 120 feet west of the west line of Lafayette street; to construct a sewer in Oak street from Nevada street to within 120 feet of the north boundary line of Starr avenue.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Murderer Wenzel Must Die for His Deeds.

London, July 29.—John George Wenzel, the young German who murdered Detective Joyce, was sentenced to death for the crime to-day.

Wenzel admitted his guilt.

Officer Joyce, who was one of the oldest and most faithful officers of the force, having served 22 years, went to arrest Wenzel on a charge of theft.

The detective was accompanied by Frederick Ruhmann, a provision dealer, and Henry Selzer, a baker, from whom Wenzel was accused of stealing. Joyce arrested Wenzel and proceeded to put handcuffs on him. Thereupon Wenzel drew a revolver from under his blouse and shot Joyce fatally.

The latter called for the police and a constable ran up and struck Wenzel with a truncheon until he was disabled. Joyce died soon after. Had he lived three years longer he would have been entitled to a pension of £80 a year. As it is his widow is only entitled to £15 a year. A subscription is being taken up for the family of the murdered officer.

THE UNIFORM RANK.

Members Have a Splendid Trip Before Them

On the Occasion of the Kansas City K. P. Encampment—Officers' Meeting at Presque Isle—The Arrangements.

The officers of the Sixth regiment, Knights of Pythias, came to Toledo yesterday, and at once went to Presque Isle, where Col. Bryant is in camp with his company in the Second regiment.

In the afternoon an officers' meeting was held for the purpose of discussing the coming national K. of P. encampment at Kansas City, and all arrangements for attending were completed. The regiment will be gone one week, and will make a fine trip through the west.

The officers present at the meeting were: Col. Bryant, Bloomdale; Adjutant L. L. Yonkers, Bowling Green; Major L. W. Ward, Fremont; Major Joseph Hower, Sandusky; Capt. James Austin, jr., Toledo; Capt. Fleischman, Toledo; Capt. F. Kline, Bryan; Capt. J. B. Wilson, Bowling Green; Capt. B. F. Myers, Tiffin; Capt. F. W. Van Dusen, Norwalk; and Lieut. J. H. Kubach, Sandusky.

Mr. F. P. Conner, of Tiffin, passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and Mr. P. E. Dombaugh, passenger agent of the Wabash railroad, were also on hand, and conferred with the officers regarding rates and arrangements.

The program as planned is for the regiment to assemble at Toledo on Saturday, August 20, and leave over the Wabash railroad at 5:20 p. m. They will arrive at St. Louis at 7:45 a. m., Sunday and spend the day in that city, guests of the St. Louis Knights. Leave St. Louis at 8 p. m., Sunday, and arrive in Kansas City at 7 o'clock Monday morning. Here they will go into camp for four days, leaving for Chicago at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. They will arrive at Chicago at 6:45 the next morning and the day will be spent in visiting the world's fair buildings. Leave Chicago at 10 p. m. and arrive in Toledo at 6:05 Saturday morning.

The regiment will make the trip in a special train and it is expected that it will muster about 400 men.

THE SHAW FARM

Sold by John Cline to Judge Burke,

Of Cleveland, for a Round Sum—The Property Will be Platted and Put on the Market.

A deal was closed yesterday afternoon whereby John Cline, treasurer of the Toledo & Ohio Central railroad, sold to Judge Burke, president of the same road, a tract of acre property for $30,000.

The piece comprises 42 acres, and is what is generally known as the Shaw farm. It is located between the James O. Allen and C. T. Plessing farms, and extends from South street to the infirmary road.

Engineers are at work establishing lines preparatory to platting the property, which will be placed on the market at once.

THE JAPANESE VILLAGE

At the Toledo Exposition Will be a Drawing Card.

They Will Not Exhibit Anywhere Else in This Part of the Country—Fujisaw's Brief Letter.

As stated in the Bee some time ago, Mr. Crane, secretary of the Toledo Exposition company, has been corresponding with Fu ji Saw, the manager of the Japanese village, that has proved so popular wherever exhibited, with the view to engaging them for the Toledo exposition.

Mr. Crane recently received a letter from Fu ji Saw, of which the following is the substance:

"I have received your letter—I shold com your city faia. But I think we are expanss so much—if you shall pay my share $250 (two hundred and fifty dollars week), I shall fine decoration and costomas. Also let me hear again."

Mr. Crane has let him "hear again" to such good purpose that it is a settled thing that the Japanese village will be at the exposition all week, exhibiting the life and arts of the Japanese, and introducing porcelain painters, artists, bamboo workers, jewelers, toy-makers, lacque-makers, embroiderers, etc., etc.

One of the best entertainers in the village is the lightning caricature and sketch artist, who is said to be really wonderful.

Miss Rew, a Japanese lady, will preside at the tea booth, and at certain hours every day will serve tea of her own making to all who wish to partake, free of charge.

Undoubtedly the Japanese village will be one of the most popular attractions at the exposition.

THE GAS BONDS DON'T GO,

At Least Until After Litigation is Concluded.

City Auditor Pheatt Receives Information to This Effect from Brewster, Cobb & Estabrook.

The Bee some days since stated that there was a very great possibility that the natural gas bond issue of $100,000, recently sold to Brewster, Cobb & Estabrook, of Boston, would not be taken, and the information to-day proves that the intimation was more than correct.

City Auditor Pheatt is in receipt of replies to his letters urging the firm to forward the cash that the bonds might be delivered, and in place of bread receives a stone. The Boston firm incloses the opinion of their attorneys after an examination of the legislation, decisions, etc., which is as follows:

Boston, July 26, 1892.

Messrs. Brewster, Cobb & Estabrook.

Gentlemen: We have examined the papers which you submitted to us relating to the Toledo (Ohio) bonds, and while the opinion of the circuit court coincides with the conclusion which we ourselves have reached, it appears that the judgment of that court has not been formally entered, and that it will not be until the 22d of September, after which it is possible for the contestants to carry the matter to the supreme court. This, we understand, they propose to do.

While such a litigation is in progress, no one can advise you that you are safe in accepting the bonds, for it is apparent that their validity is doubtful, and that nothing but a decision of the supreme court can resolve this doubt.

We cannot, therefore, advise you that the bonds are unquestionably valid.

Yours truly,

STORY & THORNDIKE.

In forwarding this communication, Brewster, Cobb & Estabrook, add:

"From the uncertainty that at present surrounds their validity there seems little else for us to do than to request the suggestion contained in our letter of the 20th, viz.: Postpone the delivery until the supreme court renders its opinion on the validity of the issue, or cancel the trade altogether."

And thus is added another chapter to the natural gas controversy in Toledo.

WEDDED, YET NO WIFE.

Wedded Again in Police Court to Separate.

A Strange Case in Which Albert Ingraham Figures—A Bogus Justice of the Peace Ties the Fuse Knot.

Some marriages are made in heaven, others are brought about by designing dowagers, and others still come to pass in the usual way; some are happy, some otherwise. The story of many reads like a romance; some are tragedies; some comedies, but the marriage that occurred in probate court this afternoon was stranger, perhaps, than the majority of cases.

Albert Ingraham was being tried for abusing his family. He was sworn and took the witness stand. His wife, a pretty little woman, stylishly attired, sat near by. The attorney asked the usual run of questions that are generally put to a witness at first, such as asking his name, etc., and then said:

"This is your wife, Mr. Ingraham?" at the same time pointing to the little woman.

"She is not," came the answer.

This statement made a sensation. For eight years the woman supposed the man was her husband. They had children and live as man and wife. She says that Ingraham took her to Riga, Michigan, where they were married by a justice of the peace, as she supposed, but now she learns that it was only a man paid to impersonate a justice for the occasion.

The judge turned to Ingraham and said: "Do you sit there and tell the court under oath that you never married this woman?"

"I do, under oath. I suppose I must tell the truth."

"Haven't the children called you father; havn't you introduced this woman as your wife; what are you; have you no feeling; are you not ashamed?"

"I suppose I am."

"Well, let me tell you one thing," continued the judge, "you must marry this woman at once and in a measure right the great wrong you have done, or a The poor woman shuddered at the thought of the marriage and asked if more grievious charge will be placed against you than the present one. Will you do so?"

"Yes."

she would have to live with him. She was told no.

She then agreed to the ceremony, saying that he must leave her forever the moment it was performed.

There have been strange wedding ceremonies, but none more so than this one.

AN IDEAL INSTITUTE.

Michigan's Headquarters of the Keeley Cure for Drunkenness.

That drunkenness is a disease and is curable, and that tens of thousands are cured and being cured by the wonderful and world-famous remedies of Dr. Leslie E. Keeley, is a fact known to every reading or listening man, woman and child, so far as civilization extends. "It is also a fact," says the Rev. Hardin W. Davis, of Charleston, Ill., "that there are a great many people who doubt the efficacy of the cure." And he adds: "What better proof do you require than the wonderful examples who walk your streets daily? The proof is the cured man. The proof of the artist's work is the picture. The proof of the sculptor's work is the statue. The proof of the physician's work is the cure he performs. So it is with this wonderful cure. Proof will be given you by the man who has tested it. There are 90,000 such witnesses, including myself. These men have a testimony, a personal knowledge. They know the Keeley cure does cure."

Toledo has living witnesses to the efficacy of this remarkable remedy. Forty miles northwest of Toledo, in the beautiful city of Ypsilanti, is located the finest Keeley institute in America, and it is making a remarkable record. Over 350 men and women have gone from its doors absolutely cured of the liquor, opium and morphine habits during its short existence. It is emphatically a Keeley institute; the remedies are manufactured at Dr. Keeley's laboratory, and are administered by skilled physicians instructed by Dr. Keeley. Its grounds, buildings, special advantages and attractions are numerous. An agent of the institute is located in Toledo, and he would be glad to give any information concerning it. If you desire to have him call upon you or any friends, drop a line to Agent of Keeley Institute, Hotel Hamilton, or 706 Madison street, Toledo.

Raum's Reckless Reminder.

If it be true, as Commissioner Raum said, in a recent speech in this state, that the capitalists who loaned the government money have received since the settlement of war expenses began, the sum of $2,635,000,000, while the soldiers who fought the battles have received only $1,424,000,000 in pensions, then, indeed, the people who belong to neither class, but whose aid to the government by raising food for the soldiers and keeping the homes, farms and shops busy might have been quite as important in its way—this humble and unnoticed class has to do considerable hard grubbing and nice calculating to pay those "magnificent" bills.

Mr. Raum, of course, we understand, is apologizing for the reckless management and extravagance of his department (he knows no man complains of the reward that goes to the honest and worthy soldiery), and to make his cause a stronger one, he unwittingly charges his party with the robbery of the country in the interest of the capitalist. For his party has enacted every law that brings about such results. Democrats have made this charge a good many times and proven it, and the injustice of it, but testimony was not expected from Raum. His party should forgive him; he was striking in self defense.

Mr. Raum may very properly be told that the discrepancy of which he complains is the one maintained, abetted and defended by his party as the correct proportion in the division of profits between labor and capital. The soldiers are only one class of sufferers.

The Country's Need.

There are too many politicians in the country and too few patriots. The ruling idea is, "my business, my fortune, my interests, my section, my state, myself." Party organs chuckle that the manufacturing states 'will vote for their own interests." Colorado has the one idea of silver because that is her product. It is a sop here and a sop there by the legislators for party gain and all the broad statesmanship the country ever could boast of is being swallowed up in this species of political maneuvering. Yet the majority of the people are not asking favors; either through their large generosity or their small comprehension, they are burdening themselves to grant favors to the minority which makes the clamor. The country never stood in greater need of broad and generous statesmanship than it does to-day.

This was a great day at Monona Lake, Madison, Wisconsin. A triangular discussion between Henry Watterson, Gov. McKinley and J. P. St. John, each man for his political principles, must send reverberations among the green dells of the Badger state! Watterson, with his clean, incisive and convincing argument, McKinley, with flights of oratory, his bright imaginings not hampered by facts, his theories clothed in fine fancies, and St. John, with his cutting sarcasm, his dagger thrusts at inconsistencies and unfulfilled pledges. According to political geometry the square described on the Watterson yhpotenuse of such a triangle as this is equal to the squares described on the other two sides. No question about that.

Colorado will prepare world's fair souvenirs of its beautiful wild flowers and specimen minerals. California is putting up 50,000 half-pound boxes of choice raisins, to be distributed free at their state headquarters. Will Ohio hand-paint some buckeyes, or send specimens of its protected wool, with price attached, along with medallions of McKinley? To be truly representative, Ohio's souvenir should have a political cast.

Public opinion, throughout the country, has had pretty full and unanimous expression on two topics connected with the Homestead affair: the employment of Pinkerton guards and the punishment of private Iams. The country wants no more of either of these. Civilization that cannot do without such aids is only half civilized.

A one-ideed political jewsharp can be very amusing. A man describing the drouth in Kansas and the consequent failure of the corn crop, gets called "a calamity shrieker" by one of these, and his object is declared to be "to bring discredit on the McKinley law, which is doing so much for the farmers."

With the locked-out workingmen locked up in jail, the state troops for guard, and active agents busy in both Europe and America, collecting laborers, the Homestead chimneys should begin to smoke again. Only the petted industries of the government can afford these things.

If the iron and steel men can pay double and three times the wages that men in ordinary lines of labor can command and the owners of the business clear a million or so yearly, it would appear to an unprejudiced observer that the firms needed no more aid from the people.

The most exasperating thing in the whole business is the manner in which Mr. Carnegie shakes the dust of America from his feet and pays his American-tribute-made profits into an English election fund.

To be sure we must retaliate upon Canada, but if there had not been so much republican "reciprocity" in our dealings with our neighbor, affairs would never have reached the retaliation point.

Said a number of times that Mr. Depew has gone to Scotland to persuade Mr. Carnegie that he owes it to the republican party which has done so much for him, that he interfere and settle the labor troubles in Pennsylvania.

The death of Washington Nathan, in England, calls to mind the half-forgotten Nathan tragedy. It will be remembered that he was accused of his father's murder. He denied all knowledge of the crime in his last hours.

Everybody wants the government to do something for him and his. What everybody should ask is to be given equal chance with everybody else and then be let alone. It is such a simple recipe and so efficacious.

Whitelaw Reid is gone into the wild and woolly west to tell them how to vote for their own best interests. He will find a few fellows living there who know a thing or two.

The Colorado fusionists got so excited they left all mention of woman suffrage out of their platform. It is nearly as exasperating to be forgotten, as to be scorned.

It becomes daily more apparent that the 16 per cent. reduction in wages was not the object at Homestead, but to break up the association of steel workers.

President Harrison's best hold is in foreign complications. He is trying to pick a scrap now with little Honduras.

And now we know why the streets of the city are in such condition—dead men handle no hoes.

What trust has been crushed by the Sherman law? Don't speak in concert.

It never rains in this blessed year of our Lord 1892, but it pours.

HEAVY EXPLOSION.

A Celluloid Works Wiped Out of Existence.

Elizabeth, N. J., July 29.—A terrific explosion occured in the Springfield celluloid works, seven miles distant from this place, a few minutes before 8 o'clock last evening.

The shock was very severe in this city, and caused great alarm among the residents. People rushed affrighted from their dwellings, supposing the shock was that of an earthquake, and that the trembling buildings were about to fall on top of them. All the factories and houses along Staten Island sound were affected by the explosion and were hurriedly deserted by their inmates.

Orange, N. J., July 29.—The Crane Chemical works at Springfield blew up at about 8 o'clock to-night and several of the buildings which composed the plant were shattered. A number of houses in the vicinity were blown down and a number of persons slightly injured. One man is missing.

The shock was tremendous, the vibrations being plainly felt in this city, which is four miles from the scene of the explosion.

The Crane Chemical works consist of a number of brick and wooden buildings, comparatively isolated from the village of Springfield.

There are not more than six houses in the immediate vicinity of the works and these are occupied by the employes of the works. The explosion shook building after building to pieces. Houses in which some of the employes lived succumbed to the concussion and fell about the heads of their inmates. At first it was thought that many had been injured, but later the probable fatalities were reduced to one.

Hardly had the echo of the explosion died away before the ruins burst into flames and shortly, fed by chemicals and oil, the fire spread over the ruins and threatened the buildings remaining standing which contained more chemicals. The citizens hastened to the scene, and, as there was no fire department nearer than this city or Newark, they formed bucket lines and began to fight the flames. Volunteers at the risk of their lives began to remove the chemicals so as to avert the danger of another explosion as much as possible.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The Democrats Complete a Very Strong Ticket.

Parkersburg, July 29.—J. V. Johnson was nominated for auditor by the democrats. Virgil Lewis was named for school superintendent.

Thomas S. Riley was nominated for attorney general after an interesting struggle.

Col. J. M. Rowan was nominated for treasurer on the first ballot. Marmaduke Dent, of Grafton, was nominated for long term supreme judge. He is also the third party nominee for supreme judge. Judge Homer Holt was unanimously re-nominated for short term of supreme court.

Samuel Vinson and Wood Daily were nominated for electors. Wm. A. McCorkle, the nominee for governor, is 34 years old. He went to Pocahontas county, W. Va., in 1876, and taught school for several years. In 1879 he removed to Kanawha, where he commenced the practice of law. He is largely identified with the business interests of Charleston.

THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

Preparations for the Grand Conclave at Denver—The Competitive Drill.

Denver, Colo., July 29.—The committee appointed by the chamber of commerce to arrange for a competitive drill announce that at least ten commanderies will compete for the elegant prizes offered. Arrangements have been made to seat 20,000 people in the park where the drill will be held.

All incoming commanderies will be met at the train and supplied with a neat book issued by the hotel committee. The book contains a complete map of the city, names of commanderies, where from and where located, all headquarters, committees, carriage rates, detailed directions about baggage, and all information such as strangers seek. The ritual committee is hard at work both day and night, this being necessary in order to complete its labors before the grand encampment.

Thousands of dollars will be expended all over Colorado in receiving the knights. At least twenty cities and towns have local committees at work arranging decorations, receptions, excursions, etc.

WISCONSIN.

The Recent Apportionment to be Tested at Law.

Madison, Wis., July 29.—Col. George W. Bird and ex-Attorney General C. E. Estabrook returned yesterday from Chicago, where they have been in consultation with Senator Spooner.

Col. Bird stated last night it had been decided to test the constitutionality of the recent democratic apportionment of the state, and that the papers will be served on the attorney general to-morrow.

The papers will be in the form of a petition from a private citizen asking the attorney general to institute action.

If the attorney general refuses action will be brought in the name of the citizen himself.

ST. MARYS NEWS.

St. Marys, O., July 29.—(Special)—An enumeration of the school children of this district shows that there are 1,100. According to this St. Marys would have a population of 4,000, an increase of 25 per cent. since the last census was taken.

BOTH WERE KILLED.

Somerset, Ky., July 29.—A desperate fight occurred at Flat Rock, this county, Wednesday afternoon between Deputy Sheriff Sellers and John Coffey, in which both were killed. Sellers attempted to arrest Coffey on a charge of adultery when the trouble began.

OVERCOME BY THE HEAT.

Washington, July 29.—Senator Colquitt was overcome by the heat Wednesday while visiting some of the down-town departments. He was taken to his residence, and for a long time his condition was regarded as critical.

A LIVELY DAY

Spent by the Second Regiment at Camp Forsyth.

Capt. Heistand, Gen. Pocock and Gen. Howe

Carefully Inspect and Instruct the Men.

Their Conduct Brings Cut Many Compliments.

Col. Bonner Has a Dinner Party for the Staff and Some Friends—Other Features and Notes Gathered.

Officer of the Day—
CAPT. J. A. KUERT, CO. G.
Officers of the Guard—
LIEUT. BENNETT, CO. F.
LIEUT. BINGHAM, CO. C.

The men of the Second regiment have had a very busy time of it to-day and plenty of hard work. Adjutant General Pocock arrived in camp last night, and to-day, with Col. Howe and Capt. Heistand, reviewed and inspected the regiment.

At 9 o'clock the regiment was marched out onto the parade grounds and were there reviewed by Adjutant General Pocock, Assistant Adjutant General Howe, and Captain Heistand. The appearance of the regiment as it passed the reviewing officers was excellent, and Col. Collins might well feel proud of his command.

The men were then marched into the shade of the grove, formed into a column of companies and inspection began. Adjutant General Pocock and Captain Heistand were the inspecting officers and their examination of arms and accoutrements was most rigid. Capt. Heistand, especially, gave the men a severe examination, and as is his custom, asked every man about a dozen questions; such as "How many bullets, such as you use, make a pound?" "How far will your gun carry?" "Why does it not carry farther?" "What stops the bullet?" "How many pieces are there in your gun?" "What is the pressure on the barrel of a gun at the instant of discharge?" and many more of a like character. When the men could not answer he instructed them and he also gave them points on cleaning the gun.

Before the first two companies had been inspected a thunder shower broke and the second battalion was sent to quarters, but the first battalion was kept in place and the inspection proceeded in the pouring rain.

When the inspection of a company was finished the captain marched his command to headquarters, and there they were mustered by Assistant Adjutant General Howe, assisted by Clerk George Holmes from the adjutant general's office.

The inspection lasted until about 2 o'clock this afternoon, and some of the men were under arms all that time, getting no dinner until the inspection was finished.

The regiment was in good shape, and the inspecting officers seemed well pleased with it.

The camp and quarters will be inspected this afternoon and the men have cleaned up the streets and tents and everything is in perfect order. The camp is also in very good sanitary condition.

This afternoon a detail from different companies of the regiment, with the band came up to the city under command of Major ClenDening and marched to G. A. R. hall, from where they will escort Forsyth post to the camp. The post has turned out in large numbers and their visit will be one of the events of the camp.

The Grand Army men appreciate the compliment paid to them by Col. Collins in naming the camp after gallant Lieutenant Forsyth and they will pay their respects to the officers at camp.

Col. Collins has invited the veterans to participate in the regimental parade, and it will be a splendid sight to see these old war horses marching beside the younger men who would take their places in the field if necessary.

It was the intention of Col. Collins to send the whole regiment to the city on this occasion, but owing to inspection and muster it was impossible.

The post, under escort of Maj. ClenDening's command, will leave for Presque Isle on the 4:30 boat.

Another affair to make this day an eventful one for the camp will be the reception given by Mark E. Sibley camp, Sons of Veterans, to the members of that order in the regiment. The Camp will go to Presque Isle, where they have been tendered the use of the boat house pavilion, and there the reception will be held.

Col. Howe is a member of the Sons of Veterans, and takes great interest in the organization.

Besides these the Trinity cadets will be the guests of Company H.

Yesterday afternoon was rather quiet in camp and the battalion drill was dispensed with. Captain Ream, of Co. D, Van Wert, however, turned his men out in spotless white uniforms and gave a fine exhibition drill in the grove. Two years ago this company was about to be mustered out, when Capt. Ream took hold of it and it was decided to allow him to keep the company in the service. He immediately proved that the trust was not misplaced and he soon redeemed the command. His men now compose as good a company as one would wish to see.

There were more visitors on the island yesterday than there has been any day this week, and the regimental parade was witnessed by fully 1,000 people.

When the parade was finished Capt. Kuert kept Company G on the field and put them through the skirmish drill by bugle. He kept them on the field nearly an hour and had them execute all the different moves of a skirmish fight, the commands all being delivered by bugle.

The instrument was in the hands of Sergeant-Major Lieut. Lang, who is a member of this company. He is an excellent bugler and his calls were promptly answered by the company. The drill was closely watched by the staff officers and Capt. Heistand and brought out some favorable comment from them as well as applause from the visitors.

When the drills were all over the band gave another of their delightful concerts at headquarters.

A Banquet.

Later in the evening Col. Bonner invited the officers and their ladies to the Ohio Yacht club house and the invitation was accepted by Col. and Mrs. Howe, Capt. Heistand, Col. Collins, Major ClenDening, Major Hopkins, of the First artillery, Adjutant Campbell, Capt. Bryant and wife, Mrs. Younker, Mr. Will Robinson, Major Van Dusen, Col. John T. Gamble, and Hon. S. M. Taylor and an elegant supper was thoroughly discussed.

During the banquet Adjutant General Pocock and wife arrived in camp and they were at once escorted to the club house by Capt. Kirk, and they spent the remainder of the evening there.

Col. Bonner presided in a happy manner, and after the eatables were disposed of he called upon the gentlemen present for toasts and remarks, and responses were made by Mr. John E. Gunchel, secretary of the club, Captain Heistand, of the regular army, Col. Howe, Hon. S. M. Taylor, Adjutant General Pocock, and Messrs. Brown and Wilson, representing the press.

The principal subjects of discussion were the national guard, and also the projected naval reserve, mentioned in the Bee yesterday.

Every officer present seemed enthusiastic over the idea of a naval reserve for Ohio, such as that of New York. It would be a great safe-guard for the unprotected northern border, which is so easily accessible by water.

Messrs. Bonner and Gunckel, on behalf of the Yacht club, stated that the club would take the matter in hand and see what could be done. The officers seemed much pleased at this and promised their hearty support and co-operation.

On the subject of the National Guard, Mr. Taylor spoke at some length, paying them some very fine compliments. He also gave the officers some good hints and pointers that can be made useful in promoting the interests of the state militia, especially in getting appropriations from the legislature.

This little banquet by Col. Bonner was heartily enjoyed by everyone who participated, and will be remembered as one of the events of the camp. It was nearly midnight when the party left the club house, and, as all had quarters on the island, most of them turned in at once.

The Guards.

Capt. Heistand, who is a regular army officer, is one of the best inspectors and instructors that the Ohio National guard has ever had, and his visits to the sentries, which he makes every night, gives the boys such a schooling as they never had before. He puts them through a regular examination, and posts them on all points where they are deficient. The Second regiment, however, keeps a splendid guard line and the captain has had little reason to complain. Last night as his party approached Post No. 6, they were challenged by the sentry, who was Private Percy Frost of the new Company E, and Capt. Heistand complimented him by saying that he was the first sentry this summer who had challenged him exactly correct. This is high praise, for Capt. Heistand has visited the camps of three regiments and has gone the rounds of the guards every night. Frost also correctly answered a large proportion of the captain's questions.

Camp News.

Gen. C. C. Doolittle visited camp yesterday.

Postmaster Dave Goodin has plenty of business.

Little Mabel Howe is the daughter of the regiment.

Judge Seney, of Kenton, is an honored guest in camp.

Major Koutzman's family spent yesterday in the city.

An excursion from Chicago is expected to visit camp Sunday.

There were no prostrations at dress parade last evening.

Mrs. T. J. O'Hara, of Findlay, joined her husband in camp to-day.

Company C, Lima City Guards, will give an exhibition drill Sunday.

Col. Bonner presents a handsome appearance in his new uniform.

This encampment will finish the time for several members of the band.

The officers and ladies from headquarters took supper with Co. G last evening.

A salute of 13 guns was fired this morning in honor of Adjutant General Pocock.

Mrs. Lieut. Wilson, of Kenton, is enjoying the camp about as much as any one in it.

Divine services will be conducted by Chaplain Mohr at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mrs. Dr. Younker, of Bowling Green, is spending a few days in camp, the guest of headquarters.

First Sergeant Blue, of Co. G, is making a record for getting his guard detail out first every morning.

Mr. Will Robinson, of Kenton, arrived in camp yesterday and will see that the regiment does its duties.

Corporal Cliff Deming, of Company G, is the youngest corporal in the regiment, being but 17 years of age.

The sentries at the gate have a hard time to keep the boys back at the time of the arrival and departure of boats.

The regimental parade was reviewed last evening by Assistant Adjutant General Howe, Capt. Heistand and Col. Bonner.

The second battalion, under Major Koutzman, came to the front in great shape at regimental parade yesterday evening.

Officer of the day, Capt. J. A. Kuert, Company G; officers of the guard, Lieut. Bennett, Company F, Leutenant Bingham Company C.

The members of Co. G received their camp pay yesterday out of the company fund. When the pay is received from the state it will be returned to the fund.

The Second regiment is fortunate in having a splendid corps of physicians in Surgeon Paul, Assistant Surgeon Glenn and Dr. Munson, the hospital steward.

Lieut. Richeld [illegible], of Co. C, acted as adjutant at regimental parade last evening, and his place as adjutant of Second battalion was taken by Lieut. Deming, of Co. G.

Taps, as sounded by Bugler T. J. O'Hara, is one of the sweetest strains of music ever made on that instrument. He has been nicely complimented by Capt. Heistand.

Walter Brown, of the Blade, was caught by a guard while trying to cross his post last night, and in spite of protests was sent to the guard house and remained there for a short time until released by one of the officers.

Louis Fleck, the big-hearted quartermaster sergeant, has a protege in a forlorn little bootblack that wandered into camp. The sergeant picked him up, fixed him out in clothing and now the boy is "right in it."

Sergeant Porter, of Company C, wears a beautiful gold medal presented to him by the company for his splendid work in the individual drill at Omaha. He was fourth man and did not win a prize, but his comrades thought that he deserved recognition.

CABINET MEETING.

Canadian Ministers to Discuss the Toll Question.

Ottawa, Ont., July 29.—It was learned on good authority that a meeting of the cabinet will be called at once for the purpose of further considering the canal tolls question. It is understood the system of rebates will be abolished altogether and uniform tolls, without regard to routes, imposed. Some of the ministers favor the abolition of tolls altogether.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION.

Working Under a Charter from the U. F. of L.

The Clerks Are Exercised Over the Early Closing Movement.

The meeting of the Central Labor union last evening was an important one, made so, by the charter received from the United Federation of Labor, under which the Central Labor union will now work.

Mr. Fred Guese was present from the Clerks' Mutual Protective union and precipitated a lively discussion on the early closing movement by stating that a certain firm in Toledo have openly boasted of increasing their trade 55 per cent. by keeping open nights since their competitors have been prevailed upon to close. Not only that, but their patronage was received largely from union men. Several heated speeches were made, and it seemed to be the sentiment of the members present that the clerks should use strenuous measures to enforce the early closing movement, and that no union man worthy of the name should patronize a store refusing to close at 6:30.

Delegates from the Butchers union were present; the butchers are desirous of becoming more thoroughly organized, and they have cards put up, designating union shops.

The treasurer's report was received, showing the finances to be in encouraging condition.

The Machinists', Painters', and Carpenters' unions are going to give excursions next month, and it is hoped by this means that not only will the members enjoy pleasure trips, but that they will be instrumental in increasing the membership and influence of their respective organizations.

Mr. Robert Booth, president of the central body, started this morning for London, Ont., to be absent about ten days. Upon his return the Carpenters' union will hold an open meeting, at which Messrs. Booth and Fellows will deliver addresses.

Mrs. M. E. Dutton desired to present the union with a silk United States flag with the name of the Central Labor union upon it, as a token of her regard for organized labor. The matter was referred to the legislative committee to decide whether the name of the union could legally appear on a United States flag.

OUR OWN SIXTEENTH

Are Now Enjoying Camp Life at Fremont.

The Boys Getting Things in Shape for a Week's Business and Pleasure Combined.

"Halt! advance and give the countersign."

This command will greet any wanderer who happened to stroll too near a beautiful and shady grove, near this flourishing little city of Fremont.

The soldier boys of the Sixteenth regiment are in camp.

This is a pleasure looked forward to every year by each member of the Ohio National guard.

Indeed it is a pleasure that the most fastidious might indulge in with delight.

The boys, both private and officer, meet each year, get acquainted, and renew friendships formed on similar occasions of the past. It is certainly a week of rare pleasure for all participating.

The regiment is now in command of new officials, Col. Bunker and staff, who arrived yesterday afternoon. It does not require regalia and tinsel to mark Col. Bunker as a soldier. Every feature of his character and personal appearance designate him to be the soldier and officer that he is.

Camp Buckland to-day presents an animated scene.

New companies are arriving and with each follows a general stir and bustle—soldiers running hither and thither, collecting their traps and putting quarters in order, while officers are figuring on a plan of action, and preparing for the general order of business. Before night, however, the companies will all have arrived and the routine of camp will be taken up, and such good order maintained that it will seem that the camp has been located on this peaceful spot for years.

The order of camp routine has already been printed in the Bee, and it will be observed.

TOLEDO IN LINE.

Through the Efforts of Mr. T. C. Stevens

The Clearing House in This City Will be Attached to the National Organization.

The alleged boodling of which Toledo's city officers are accused, and on which she is being congratulated by her sarcastic sister cities as an evidence of growth and progress, are not the only indications that this city is becoming metropolitan. That the many natural advantages of Toledo, and the wealth and influence of her citizens are recognized and appreciated, is again evidenced by the authentic report that Toledo's clearing house will soon, through the untiring efforts of Mr. Thiede Stevens and other prominent gentlemen, be attached to the national clearing house. Mr. Stevens has been communicating with the national officials, and a meeting will be held, in the near future, of the officers of the national clearing house and those of the organization in Toledo and arrangements perfected whereby Toledo will be put in line with the leading banks of the country.

THE LAST RETURNS.

Liberals Carry the Final Election for Parlament

London, July 29.—The returns from the election in Orkney and Shetland islands, received to-day completes the new parliament.

The liberals, as was expected carried the day, Mr. Leonard Lyell, liberal, being re-elected by a vote of 2,617 to 1,674 for W. Younger, liberal unionist.

In 1885 Mr. Lyell had a majority of 1,412 over the conservative candidate, and in 1886 Mr. Lyell had a majority of 971 over the liberal unionist candidate. His majority reported to-day is somewhat less, being 943.

Mr. Lyell is a nephew of the late Sir Charles Lyell, the famous geologist. Orkney and Shetland have returned a liberal for 60 years. From 1832 until 1880 there was no contest.

The result in Orkney and Shetland leaves Mr. Gladstone with 40 majority for a vote of "no confidence" in Lord Salisbury's ministry, this majority including liberals, labor, anti-Parnellites and Parnellites.

STREET CAR TROUBLES.

Indianapolis Preparing for Another Strike.

A Brotherhood Man Discharged Without a Hearing, Contrary to the Agreement.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 29.—President Frenzel, of the street railway company, Wednesday discharged J. P. Riggs, secretary of the brotherhood on the alleged charge of dishonesty in reporting fares.

The accusation was made by a spotter supposed to be a Pinkerton detective.

Riggs indignantly denies the charges. He has been in the service of the company for many years and was active in the recent strike.

It is generally accepted that the Frenzel management is anxious to be rid of him because of his influence.

A meeting of the brotherhood began this morning at 10 o'clock and it is not improbable that there will be another strike.

The public sympathy, as before, is with the brotherhood.

A committee attempted to see Mr. Frenzel yesterdy, but he refused to be seen, though the basis of the last settlement included an agreement that men discharged should first have a trial.

SENTENCE WAS TOO LIGHT.

Inhuman Treatment to Unfortunate Children.

London, July 29.—An especially atrocious case of baby-farming has again directed public attention to the necessity of legislation that will provide more severe penalties than that imposed in the case just decided by the Peterborough sessions.

In this case James Beverley, a woodturner, and Polly, his wife, were charged with willfully neglecting a child named Arthur Bellby in a manner likely to cause unnecessary suffering, if not death.

It appeared from the evidence that the mother of the child, a Leeds servant, met the Beverleys in Leeds in March, and handed the child over to them to be brought up, and at the same time paid the prisoners 20 pounds for that purpose.

The Beverleys moved to Peterborough, and there the child was subjected to the most unhuman treatment.

The male prisoner, who was an insurance agent, had the child's life insured. When the officer of the society for the prevention of cruelty to children visited the house, he found the child in a terribly emaciated condition. Its clothes were soaked with wet, its back covered with flea bites, its hair matted, its eyes and ears inflamed, and with its clothes on only weighed nine pounds. For this inhuman crime the woman was sentenced to three months and the man to six months imprisonment.

PASSENGER RATES.

Wabash and Missouri Pacific Explaining Matters.

St. Louis, Mo., July 29.—Chairman Caldwell of the Western Passenger association, is closeted this afternoon with representatives of the Missouri Pacific and Wabash roads.

Some time ago the Wabash brought charges against the Missouri Pacific to the effect that the latter had violated certain rules governing time limits on tickets of the Western Passenger association.

The case came up for trial on the 21st, but owing to the absence of important witnesses was postponed until to-day.

EXCURSION TO FREMONT.

On Sunday, July 31, the Wheeling & Lake Erie railway will run a special excursion train to Fremont and return, to give their patrons an opportunity of visiting the camp of the Sixteenth regiment, O. N. G. Special train leaves Cherry street depot at 8:30 a. m. Returning, leaves Fremont 7:30 p. m. Fare for round trip, 75 cents.

SAVE THE MAPLE TREES.

Why Leaves Are Turning Brown.

The State Canal Commissioners Make an Important Discovery—Columbus Chat.

Columbus, O., July 29.—During the recent hot blasts maple trees in this city and county have been suffering from a peculiar insect or disease that for a while could not be explained. The attention of Secretary L. M. Bonham, of the state board of agriculture, was called to it and the following correspondence with Professor Webster, of the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster, resulted:

Columbus, O., July 23, 1892.
Mr. F. M. Webster, Wooster, O.

My Dear Sir—I have noticed among the maple trees of Columbus a great many whose leaves are affected with a rust, giving them a bronze color, and occasionally we see a leaf with dead spots in it. Some trees were affected in the same way last season. I found on such trees, on one side of a limb, a white looking mold or fungus, and in some places I found the eggs of an insect encased in a fleecy covering with the end of the cover sealed up with a brown crust. I presume the same can be found on other trees in the city. Will you be kind enough to tell me what the trouble is and what is its remedy. Have we any encouragement to spray or to use any other preventive to save the beautiful maples. Hoping a remedy simple and effective may be found, I remain, yours very truly.

L. N. BONHAM, Secretary.

Professor Webster sent the following reply:

Mr. L. N. Bonham, Columbus, O.

Dear Sir—Your favor of the 23d at hand. The insect affecting the maple trees in your city is the maple bark louse, Pulvinaria innumerabilis. They were quite abundant along Neil avenue last year, but I had hoped their natural enemies had them under control. Kerosene emulsion is about the only insecticide that will have any effect upon them. This is made by dissolving one-half pound soap in one gallon boiling water, and while still boiling hot add two gallons of kerosene. Churn this mixture for five or ten minutes with the aid of spray pump and nozzle—that is, place the pump in the mixture and draw it in and force it out until a thick creamy substance is formed. Dilute this with cold water, one part to nine of water, and spray the trees in such a way as to reach the leaves from the under side. Much good may be done by a full stream of water from ordinary hose, such as is used on lawns, on the trees each day and thoroughly drenching them. This kills or washes off the young to some extent, but is not as effective as the emulsion. Yours respectfully,

F. M. WEBSTER.

Records That Will Cause Commotion.

State Canal Commissioners Rownd and Diddine this afternoon discovered some records that will occasion quite a stir in Columbus among property owners and large manufacturers whose buildings and factories stand on state lands. The records discovered bear the date of 1832, or just two years after the state board of public works was established. The board at that time had complete and perfect authority to appropriate to their use streams, canals, etc., and the timber growing along the banks. By this right the Scioto river was appropriated from the state dam to the Ohio penitentiary, a distance of one mile in the heart of the city, for a state dam and to furnish slack water for navigation. The appropriation not only included the water-way itself, but the banks on both sides of the stream. This appropriation by the state had long since been forgotten, and several large manufactories have been erected, some of which stand their sides in the river for a water supply. By enforcing their rights the canal commission will cause a great deal of stir in obtaining possession of this ground.

Enjoined From Issuing a Bulletin.

State Food and Dairy Commissioner F. B. McNeal was this afternoon enjoined by Messrs. Outhwaite, Linn, McNagten and Gumble, attorneys for Williams Brothers, vinegar manufacturers of Cleveland and Detroit, to stop the issuing of a bulletin declaring against a brand of vinegar which they make. They claim that the law under which the commissioner acts is unconstitutional because it interferes with the property rights of private citizens. They further claim that their produce is pure and that there is no law for issuing bulletins.

INTEGRITY DIDN'T WIN.

There Was a Tip on the Mayor's Alleged Horse and It Went Wrong

There was a smile a yard long on the faces of the pool room keepers along Park Row one day last week. The man with a "straight tip" was abroad, says the New York Recorder.

Next to a poor relation, the man with the tip on the races is most certainly always with us. Somehow or other it became noised about that Integrity, a racer said to be the property of Mayor Hugh J. Grant, was booked to win at Monmouth. Nobody had ever charged Integrity with winning anything before, and the rumor that the beast was at last going to do something came as somewhat of a shock to the sporting public.

There were mysterious whisperings going on in all of the public departments. Clerks who had been helping the bookies to grow rich took a new lease on life. During the noon hour they forgot their lunch in their mad desire to make a pool room. They looked the board over, and there, sure enough, was Integrity. The bookies had evidently not been let into Integrity's game and were offering odds of 15 to 1 and clamoring for takers.

The boys strung along in single file, passed by the genial gentleman in the cashier's box, left their bundle and walked away, satisfied that all they would have to do would be to return in the course of a few hours and have a laugh at the expense of the talent. When the book closed and the odds on Integrity had not gone down the fraction of a cent the Tammany contingent concluded that the mayor was as great a turfman as he was a statesman. How the talent would go down, they thought, as they heard the welcome words, "They're off at Monmouth, with Integrity in the lead."

A silence like that of death spread through the pool rooms. The boys smiled with glee, as visions of a summer's vacation on bookmakers' money loomed up in the distance.

"Cactus leads at the quarter," came floating from the mysterious man in the box. "Raindrop and Mutiny neck and neck."

Ah, thought the followers of the political horse, Integrity is holding back for a breakneck finish.

"Cactus leads in the stretch," came the same sing-song voice, "Miss Maude, Mutiny and Experiment in a bunch."

Then there was a profound silence. One could almost imagine he heard Mayor Grant breathing away over in city hall.

"Cactus wins," came the same solemnly musical voice, without a tremor. "Miss Maude second, mutiny third."

The straight tipsters said never a word. They do not speak of Integrity now around the city hall. It is as out of place as Integrity was out of sight at the finish.

It should be remembered that Mayor Grant says that he doesn't own the horse.

The next to the highest price ever paid for a horse in the world was $105,000, for which Axtell, the trotter, was sold in Indiana at the age of three years. On January 11, 1892, Arion was sold by Senator Stanford to J. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston, for $150,000. That beats all prices. Charles Reed, of the Fairview Farm, Tenn., gave $100,000 for the great stallion St. Blaise, at a sale in New York.

The rich and powerful princes of India, writes Consul-General Ballatine, are preparing to send to the world's fair a large collection of exhibits, including artistic articles of gold and silver, ivory carvings, paintings, lacquer and damask work, embroidery, lace, silver filigree work, etc. Several of the princes have decided to visit the fair with their retinues.

"POSSUM AND WATERMILLEN."

The Mixture That Caused Jim Jenkins' Untimely Death.

"Brudder Johnson, I hezn't seen Jim Jenkins 'bout hyar fur sum time."

"An' yo' ain't 't gwine to see him 'bout hyar fur sum time longer yit, Uncle Rastus."

"Yo' doan't tell me. Nuthin' wrong, I hopes, Brudder Johnson?"

"No, sah. Jim's jus' dead, dat's all, sah."

"Ump, I is sartinly sorry tu heah dat. What wuz de 'cashun of Jim's removal, Brudder Johnson?"

"Well, de doctur gib it out ez confushun uf de stummick, sah."

"Confushun uf the stummick, Brudder Johnson?"

"Yas, sah. Dat's what de doctur say. An' I wuz berry partickler to 'cognize jus' what he say."

"Confushun uf de stummick, eh. Well, dat beats me, Brudder Johnson. What wuz de 'cashun uf dis confushun, sah?"

"Possum an' watermilin, sah."

"What's dat yo' say, Brudder Johnson. 'Possum and watermilin?"

"Da's what de doctor 'cided, Uncle Rastus. It seems like he wuz uf de 'pinion dat 'possum an' watermilin, tuken tugedder, wuz tu much fur Jim's stummick, sah."

"Uf course dey wuz, Brudder Johnson. Dar ain't no mistake 'bout dat 'clushun, sah. An' it duz seem like folks nowadays is a gittin' so dat dey rushes right in de face uf Providence. 'Possum an' watermilin!"

"Yo' isn't a-runnin' down 'possum an' watermilin, is yo', Uncle Rastus?"

"Luk, hyar, Brudder Johnson, is I cullud ur is I white?"

"Cullud, sah."

"Well, den, did yo' ebber heah tell uf any cullud pusson a runnin's down 'possum an' watermilin?"

"No, sah. Nebber, sah."

"An' yo' ain't likely tu, sah, ez long ez cullud folks doan't lose dere sef-respec', sah."

"I doan't kno' dat I understans' yo den, Uncle Rastus."

"Den I'll try tu splain, Brudder Johnson. Dar ain't no doubt in de wurl but dat 'possum an' watermilin wuz made 'clusively for de cullud folks, is dar?"

"No, sah; no, sah. Dat dar ain't."

"Uf course I 'cognize de fac' dat de white folks eats bote uf 'em, but dat is jus' annudder 'cashun uf dere a tramplin' on de purrogatives uf de cullud race. But, to pursume de subjec', dar's a time fur dis, an' dar's a time fur dat; an' dat's jus' whar Jim Jenkins los' his 'membrance."

"How's dat, Uncle Rastus?"

"Why, sah, a pursumin' to tempt de wrath of de Lawd de way he did. When de good Lawd gib de cullud peoples 'possum an' watermilin he nebber 'magin'ed dat dey'd be eatin' tugedder. No, sah, he nebber 'tended dat dey shud be."

"Why, Uncle Rastus?"

"Brudder Johnson, tell me dis: Is yo' los' all yur reasonin'?"

"No, sah, dat I isn't."

"Well, den yo' talk mighty like it, Brudder Johnson. When he Lawd made de 'possum an' sot it aside fur de cullud man an' when he made de watermilin an' sot dat aside fur de cullud man, he specially fie de cullud man's stummick fur dem blessins uf his. But he fit 'em so dat one wuz tu be eaten dis time uf de y'ar an' de udder wuz tu be eaten dat time uf de y'ar. A' so it is, Brudder Johnson, dat when de cullud man furgits tu 'joy dese blessins uf de Lawd one at a time an' in dere partickler season, den it is dat he rushes, ez I say, intu de berry face uf Providence, an' calls down on him de righteous wrath uf Gawd."

"Yo' is talkin' now, Uncle Rastus."

"Yes, sah; dat I is. An', glory be tu Gawd, sah, I is got de good book for my foundashun. Understan' me, Brudder Johnson, I duzn't say yo'll find dese berry words dar, but I duz say dis —dat de Lawd said unto de cullud man: 'In de time uf 'possum eat 'possum, an' in de time uf watermilin eat watermilin, an' fear de Lawd dy Gawd.' So, sah, when de cullud man furgits dat, an rushes de blessins uf de Lawd out of dere season, den yo' kin luk fur confushun of de stummick ebry time, Brudder Johnson."—Washington Star.

A HORSE AT HOME IN THE TREE TOPS.

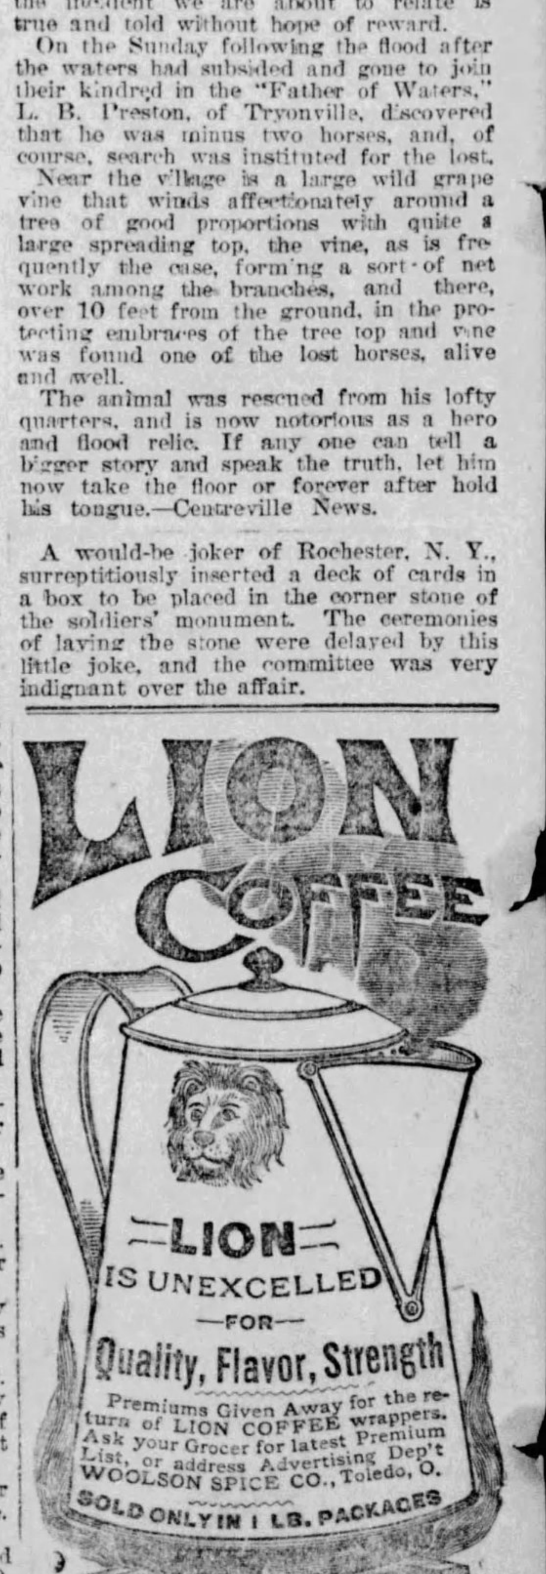
We have been told of many ludicrous scenes and incidents growing out of the great flood of June 4, and ambitious reporters have bursted clouds and milldams and almost ruined their imaginations in their frantic endeavors to gain notoriety and fame in reportorial journalism, but the incident we are about to relate is true and told without hope of reward.

On the Sunday following the flood after the waters had subsided and gone to join their kindred in the "Father of Waters," L. B. Preston, of Tryonville, discovered that he was minus two horses, and, of course, search was instituted for the lost.

Near the village is a large wild grape vine that winds affectionately around a tree of good proportions with quite a large spreading top, the vine, as is frequently the case, forming a sort of net work among the branches, and there, over 10 feet from the ground, in the protecting embraces of the tree top and vine was found one of the lost horses, alive and well.

The animal was rescued from his lofty quarters, and is now notorious as a hero and flood relic. If any one can tell a bigger story and speak the truth, let him now take the floor or forever after hold his tongue.—Centreville News.

A would-be joker of Rochester, N. Y., surreptitiously inserted a deck of cards in a box to be placed in the corner stone of the soldiers' monument. The ceremonies of laying the stone were delayed by this little joke, and the committee was very indignant over the affair.



MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION.

In the opinion of the mayor it has become necessary in order to prevent the disease of hydrophobia, to restrain all dogs from running at large during the heated term. Therefore in accordance with section 254 of the revised ordinance of the city of Toledo, it is hereby declared unlawful for any dogs to run at large unless the same are muzzled, from and after this date up to the first day of September, 1892, and any dogs found running at large during the time so specified may be killed.

V. J. EMMICK,
Mayor of the city of Toledo, Ohio.
Toledo, O., July 22, 1892.

THE IDEALIST.

He had pondered long the plan
Of nature and man,
And is won to the conclusion
That all matter is illusion,
And that all we see or seem
Is but the dim confusion
Of a dream;

That nothing here is real
Save the unseen, the ideal,
The strenuous warm motion
Of the soul that, like an ocean,
Throbs and sobs along the shore,
In a kind of blind devotion,
Evermore.

That which we prize of earth
Is of little weight or worth,
For it passes as we view it,
And howe'er we may pursue it
With a passion to adore—
We can ne'er attain unto it,
Evermore.

Yet Love's self is never vain,
It can neither lose nor gain,
Here nor there—It is an essence
That enlarges not nor lessens
Under sun, or sea, or sod—
It is but the living presence
Of a God.

Life and Love are one, and are
All in all, from star to star—
To the end from the beginning
When our spirits were sent spinning
Down eternity's long groove,
Nothing has been worth the winning,
Saving love.

The costliest meal ever served, as far as history shows, was a supper given by Aelius Verus, one of the most lavish of all the Romans of the latter day, to a dozen guests. The cost of this supper was 6,000 sesteria, which would amount to £48,500, or nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

The home where the poet Longfellow was born, corner of Fore and Hancock streets, Portland, Me., has been purchased by Mr. John Musgrave, of that city, who is remodeling the interior. He is bothered a good deal by relic-hunters, one admirer of Longfellow going as far the other day as to walk off with a mantel-piece.

It is said that in China the wife is very seldom mentioned by her husband, but when he does mention her it is always in some roundabout way. He has some name that he calls her in his flowery language, which takes the place of the word "wife." One man calls his wife "my hand the clothes;" another "my dull companion;" another "my thorn in the ribs;" another describes her as "the mean one of the inner rooms."

One of the most remarkable cases on record of dependence in faith cure is that of a Dexter woman who is reported as having become so infatuated with the Christain Scientiest theory that she laid away on the shelf her false teeth that she had worn several years, declaring that she had faith that natural teeth would grow again. She has waited patiently for this result for six months, but for some inexplicable reason the new teeth yet delay their coming.

A curious contest has arisen over the management of Cogswell Polytechnic college in San Francisco. Dr. Cogswell, the rich dentist who gained notoriety by presenting to the several eastern cities iron drinking fountains bearing his figure, founded a college for manual training and appointed its trustees. Recently he became dissatisfied with the acts of the trustees and, upon the death of several of them, refused to appoint others, his desire being to gain control of the institution. The trustees have given notice that the college will be opened for a full term next Monday, but in the meantime Cogswell has seized the building and holds it with armed retainers.

EL SUPERINTENDENTE.

The superintendent of the San Gabriel mine was unhappy. Who would not be, alone in an unknown corner of the wildest region of a wild country, with no society excepting that of a yellow dog and a few score of miserable, ignorant peons? Not you, my friend, who sigh for a lodge in some vast wilderness, when all the time you are one of the most gregarious animals alive—nor I, nor anyone else presumably sane. And Ed Herndon was of sound mind and otherwise capable of feeling his situation keenly.

In the first place he was young and a sociable—very sociable—fellow. Second, he was married, and his wife (he used, when he was alone, which was pretty often, to speak aloud the words "my wife," for the sake of the pleasurable thrill that always followed) was with her parents in the states, and she was—well, nowhere. Third, he had been married just before his train started for El Paso, and had barely had time to kiss his bride for a moment—and theirs was a very romantic attachment, and they loved each other deeply. How poor little Avis had wanted to come with him, and how it tore his heart-strings to leave her! They had not intended to be married at that time, but the sudden change of Ed's other plans had caused them to change this, because it would be so comforting to know that, in spite of their separation, they would really and truly belong to each other forever and ever.

Whether or not this fact did comfort them or not I do not know. It probably did. Be that as it may, Avis was away up north there with her friends and Ed was down here in Chihuahua, coining money, it is true, but desperately blue and getting bluer every day.

How sudden it had been! On Thursday had come the telegram from New York with such a magnificent offer to him to put the San Gabriel in working order and remain in charge six months—a big salary and some stock, which he knew would be valuable, because his friend Clover had made the examination on the strength of which the mine was purchased. And how could he, a young engineer, afford to refuse such an offer? As I said, it came on Thursday, this offer; Friday evening Ed Herndon was on his way to El Paso and Chihuahua. And he had been here on account of various haps and mishaps over a year, with only the peons and his dog Jack for regular company. First it had been the loss of the machinery in transportation from the city of Chihuahua; second, some other untoward accident extended the delay; and now it was some kink or other in the company's patent which had to be attended to. He should have been looking after this matter himself, but two of the company's officers were at Chihuahua to see about it, and just now, for various reasons, his presence at the San Gabriel was imperative. Not for long, however. In the course of another week or so he would be free, and then for home!

It was of this that Herndon was thinking as he lay dreaming in his hammock one hot stifling afternoon. Hardly a breath of air was stirring, and there was no sound except the buzzing of a few lazy flies. It was a good time to dream and think. There was a beautiful, cool-looking view off to the north, with a great cataract in the foreground, but Herndon's eyes did not see it. It was an old story, and he had something better to think of.

The sound of a light footstep at the other end of the veranda interrupted his meditations, and he roused himself a little impatiently to see who the intruder was.

"Oh, it's you, is it, Chicken?" he said, in English, and sank back in his hammock again.

The person addressed as "Chicken" came and stood by his side and with one little bron hand timidly caressed the waving hair of the superintendent. It was a little peon girl—plump as a partridge, perfectly formed, and more than ordinarily pretty. Head and feet were bare, and the only garment she wore—a short frock of coarse material—seemed, somehow, to add to her wild beauty. She could not have been more than 13 years old at the most, this cheery-faced little daughter of Manana land; yet, in addition to the full bust and rounded limbs, there was proof to show that she had known what womanhood meant in its deepest sense—for on her breast slept a tiny brown baby, and the way in which she cuddled it to her showed that it was her own

She was one of the daughters of the alcalde of the miserable little village at the foot of the mountain. There were so many of them that one or two, more or less, made no difference to the drunken old alcalde, and he was highly flattered when "El Superintendente" expressed a desire for the bright-eyed Dolores. So was Dolores. Such a thing as scruple in such matters was undreamed of by any one in the village. It was the custom whenever a Senor Americano came, and the maiden who took his fancy was envied of all her mates. And Herndon? He had never thought much about it. He had been in Mexico before, and it seemed the most natural thing in the world. Why, these people were only animals—virtue was an unknown quantity in them. A woman is a convenient article for many reasons, and, if she be pretty and bright, so much the better. So he had brought Dolores up to his quarters, when he first came and here she was now. To the child, Herndon never paid any attention. It was rather an inconvenience, but that was all.

Herndon looked up lazily, with half closed eyes, at the girl's smiling, happy face. He wondered how she would look dressed in the garb of civilization, and decided that such a change would detract from her beauty. She would not look natural, and naturalness is the chief charm of nature's children.

The babe awoke and began to cry. Dolores sat down in the low chair, near the hammock, and, opening the bosom of her dress, began to nurse it. Herndon in the hammock, still looked at her in his kind, somewhat quizzical way, from under drowsy lids.

"Dolores," he said, in Spanish, "I'm going away next week."

The girl looked up suddenly, all gladness gone from her face.

"Going away, senor For how long?" she asked, eagerly.

Herndon did not answer for a moment. He did not want to hurt her by telling the truth. He was a kind-hearted chap, "El Superintendente," and never wilfully wounded the feelings of a living creature So he answered, "Only—that is, just going to Chihauhau. I'll be back in a month."

Unintentionally he did not look at her as he spoke; and Dolores, simple as she was, noticed this, and suspected him of speaking falsely—and for no other reason than that her jealous woman's heart accused him. She said nothing more, but presently changed the babe's position, rose quietly and went into the house, where she stood looking out of an east window a long time, with an unusually grave expression on her face. Herndon did not notice that she was gone. He was trying to conjure up a picture of his wife as she would look when he stepped off the train at Denver.

* * * * *

Everything was settled. The new superintendent had arrived and become initiated, and Herndon, with a glad heart, turned over the property of the company to him late one night. Ross, the new man, laughingly inquired if the little Indian and her child were included in the stock, and Herndon as laughingly replied that he presumed so—that was for Ross, the alcade and the girl to arrange. Then he turned in quietly, so as not to waken Dolores. He had packed up and was ready to start at 3 o'clock in the morning.

At 2 o'clock he awoke and lighted a candle. It was too late to think of further sleep. He reached over and shook Dolores gently. "Wake up, little one! Don't you want to get me some breakfast?"

Dolores sat up and rubbed her eyes. The she rose, silently slipped into her dress and began to prepare breakfast, while Herndon lay in bed for awhile, looking at the ceiling and wishing the long journey before him was at an end.

Francisco, the guide, came in and announced that all was ready, and Herndon rose and dressed hastily, and as hastily drank a cup of coffee. He could eat nothing. Dolores looked disappointed at this, but the man at the table did not notice. He pushed back his chair and filled his pipe ,taking two or three reflective whiffs. Then he rose, put on his hat and belt, turned to the girl, who was standing silently looking at the sleeping babe on the bed in the next room.

"Well, adois, Chicken!" he said cheerfully. "Aren't going to cry, are you? No? That's a good girl. Come, kiss me."

She lifted her face, with its rigid jaws and dry, burning eyes. He kissed her twice, carelessly, turned on his heel, and, with another adois, was gone.

Along the difficult trail to the east a white man and two peons traveled until the scorching sun compelled them to halt and wait for the cool of early evening. Behind them, yet out of their sight, a sad, weary little figure, clasping close to its breast something bundled in cheap, white cloth, plodded and stumbled along. Now and then bruised feet would demand a halt, or the querulous cry that came from the white bundle would compel the tired traveler to stop and rest.

At noon the three men lay sleeping in a grassy, cool nook near a spring, just off the trail, while along the dusty road a child-woman, faint, panting, bruised, and nearly exhausted, struggled painfully on, with parched lips that murmured prayers for strength, and dry eyes that looked now and again to the brassy sky above for sympathy.

Edward Herndon dreamed on. His were pleasant dreams, all but the last. In this, it seemed, somehow, as if he had reached home and wife. Avis was coming to his outstretched arms, when, suddenly, there came a mist which enveloped her, and she disappeared, leaving him mad with heart-hunger. He stirred uneasily and moaned. It startled the owner of the eyes that for half an hour had feasted on his sleeping face. The form which had knelt beside him during that time drew nearer; softly. The eyes were raised to heaven in piteous appeal for forgiveness. A hand, small and strong, raised a bright something and poised it above the sleeping man's breast. There was a flash—another—a sighing groan, heard by none save the person at his side, who still gazed, as though spellbound, at his handsome face—and Edward Herndon had gone from Mexico, and the bride of a minute, who had never been a wife, was a widow.

Francisco and Pedro, the guides, brought the body back to the village, and were put under arrest by Ross and the alcalde, who sent a runner to the next village for a squad of soldiers. The soldiers came and started to take their prisoners to the efe politico of the district. They attempted to escape and were shot and killed—so the sergeant reported. It is a convenient and inexpensive way they have in Mexico, when the weather is warm and the distance to be traveled is considerable.

Up in the states the papers report "another American brutally murdered by plundering Mexicans," and demand an investigation. Up in the states a woman is mourning and will mourn till death for the strong young life and her life's happiness cut off together. Down in a tiny village in the mountains of Chihuahua an idiot girl croons all day long to the bundle of rags she imagines is the babe they fear to trust her with.—Argonaut.

The best cow owned by Wm. Stillwagon, at Schoenersville, Pa., ate 40 cakes of soap that Mrs. Stillwagon had made and had set out to dry. Half an hour later the cow was found with a stream of froth pouring from her mouth, and she was suffocated.

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies.

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

The Strength and Beauty of Woman's Devotion.

A Minneapolis Woman Who Tells Her Own Story.

Why Mrs. Anna E. Lower Could Sleep Only About Two Hours a Night.

"Ye who believe in beauty and strength of woman's devotion," as Longfellow says, list to a tale of stern reality from Minneapolis.

No better instance of a wife's devotion, with resulting years of suffering, is recorded, than that of Mrs. Anna E. Lower, who resides at 2706 Portland avenue, in that city. Let Mrs. Lower tell her own story:

"For a number of years I have had the care of an invalid husband, and for the past five years have been his constant attendant. As a result my own health and strength were fast wearing out.

Mrs. Anna E. Lower.

"For over two years I suffered almost continually with pains at the back of my head at the base of the brain. I usually slept about two hours each night, always felt tired, and had no appetite. During the month of January, 1890, and again about the same time in 1891, I was troubled terribly with my head and throat. I was so bad that I was in bed for eight weeks, attended by two doctors.

"When the month of December, 1891, came, I naturally began to dread the return of the former attacks and to look around for something more lasting in its effects than what the doctors had given me before. As an experiment, I got one bottle of a medicine that the druggist recommended. I have not missed a dose since I began to use it. The result is that the pain in my head has long since disappeared; I had no head trouble in January, and to make a long story short, I now feel better generally than I have for over three years. I sleep well, have a good appetite, and now my business is to sound the praises of Paine's celery compound, the medicine that did all this for me.

"My nephew, Harry H. Dance, of this city, suffered for weeks with rheumatism, but doubted if the compound would help him. At last, after a good deal of urging from me, he tried it, and now he is as loud in its praise as I am. He is only one of about twenty whom I have converted to its use.

"I am going to take Paine's celery compound all summer, for I am generally weak and debilitated during the warm weather, and this medicine makes me stronger. In fact I do not feel like the same person since I began taking it."

The above facts are a striking verification of the statements that have appeared lately in the papers that Paine's celery compound is a food and nourisher for the nerves that builds up the system permanently and does not stimulate temporarily. It is a healt-restoring and life-giving compound that makes people well.

CONGREGATIONALISTS.

Important Action Taken at the Recent Meeting.

A Movement to Consolidate the Seven Missionary and Educational Societies Into Two.

Boston, Mass., July 29.—Delegates returning from the convention of representatives of the national society of the Congregational church, which was held at Cottage City, Martha's Vineyard, on the 27th and 28th, say that the convention although, of course, purely deliberative, has succeeded in inaugurating several reforms that will prove of lasting benefit to the church.

The seven societies represented were the American Board of Foreign Missions, the American Home Missionary society, the American Missionary association, whose special field of labor is among the negroes of the south, the Sunday School society, and the New West Education Commission, engaged in educational work among the Mormons of Utah and in other parts of the west.

Each of these societies was represented by the secretary of its national executive committe. According to an agreement arrived at by the conference each of these secretaries will lay before his society a proposition for amalgamating the seven societies into two, the one missionary and the other educational.

In that event, it is argued, more effective results will be accomplished at far less trouble and expense than under the existing order of things.

This conference is the first of the kind in the history of the Congregational church, the tendency heretofore having been for each of the societies to maintain its individuality, and to carry on its work independent of the others.

The inauguration of the new plan of action is the result of a correspondence between the Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Clark, secretary of the American Home Missionary society, and the secretaries of the other organizations.

KNUTE NELSON NAMED.

Republicans of Minnesota in Convention.

A Resolution Favoring the Adoption of the Anti-Option Bill Now Before Congress.

St. Paul, Minn., July 29.—It was 11:45 when Chairman Heatwole, of the state committee, called the republican state convention to order. Ex-Congressman Mark Dunnell, was elected temporary chairman by acclamation. At the conclusion of Mr. Dunnell's address committees were appointed and a recess taken until 2 o'clock.

The convention at 2:30 was unable to get down to work at once on account of the committees not having completed their work.

Wm. Henry Eustis, of Minneapolis, presented a resolution eulogizing Hon. James G. Blaine; sympathizing with him in his recent afflictions and expressing the hope that he may again be called into service after having enjoyed a well earned rest.

The resolution was adopted by a rising vote with cheers.

A number of other favorite speakers, including Alden J. Blethen, Gov. Barto, National Committeeman Evans and others were called for and responded briefly. Finally at 4:15 the committee on credentials reported and the report was adopted.

State Senator Tawney presented a resolution pledging the party to the re-election of United States Senator Davis. The resolution was greeted and adopted with cheers by a rising vote.

The committee on resolutions had been in session all the afternoon, the chief matter under consideration being the question of local option. It was discussed at considerable length and finally the committee decided not to mention that subject in the platform. Through their chairman the resolution committee reported the platform which indorses the national platform and the administration of President Harrison; favors all wise means to secure to every citizen a free ballot and a fair count; opposes trusts and favors legislation to eradicate and repress the evil; believes in protection of laborers; recommends a board of arbitration for settling disputes between labor and capital; regards the employment of armed men by other than the proper authorities of the state as un-American and tending to promote lawlessness and a breach of the peace; favors protection for farmers; approves and re-adopts the resolution adopted at the last state convention urging upon congress the passage of the Washburn-Hatch anti-option bill. The platform was adopted by a rising vote.

Temporary organization was then made permanent and nominations for governor declared in order.

Hon. James A. Tawney, of Winona, presented the name of ex-Congressman Knute Nelson for that position. Rev. Dr. Sam Smith, of St. Paul, presented the name of ex-Gov. A. R. McGill, but Mr. McGill had begged the delegation not to present his name, as he preferred party success to factional fights. Frank Davis, of Hennepin county, seconded Nelson's nomination and the nomiation of Nelson was made by acclamation.

Then Frank Nye, of Hennepin, was nominated for lieutenant governor by acclamation.

There was a lively scramble for the office of secretary of state, seven candidates being placed in nomination. H. P. Brown, of Blue Earth county, was chosen on the second ballot and at 7:20 a recess was taken until 8:30.

When the convention reassembled the chairman was empowered to appoint the state central committee after consultation with the candidates. Joseph Bodleter, of Brown county, was then chosen as candidate for state treasurer on the first ballot.

FACTS FROM FINDLAY.

Findlay, O., July 29.—(Special)—Ida M. Schwab began suit against Barney Weber, sr., for $5,000 damages, caused by him threatening her on July 9 with a knife and heavy cane and using abusive language.

Jackson Robbins died near Bloomdale, Wood county.

The large barn of Adolp Emery, Pleasant township, south of McComb, was struck by lightning yesterday afternoon and burned with almost its entire valuable contents, a year's crop of grain, farming utensils, etc. Loss $3,000; insurance $1,000. Three horses were saved and one burned.

Last night about midnight the barn of L. C. Clark, Amanda township, east of the city, burned with all its contents, besides a large granary. Loss on contents $1,500; no insurance; loss on buildings $1,500; insurance $900. A fine stallion valued at $800 was burned.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

Senator James F. Pierce, of New York, writes:

"For the past two years I have suffered very much from an aggravated form of nervous dyspepsia. I have resorted to various remedial agents, deriving but little benefit. A few months since a friend of mine suggested the trial of Allcock's Porous Plasters. Following the suggestion, I have been using the same with the happiest effects. To those similarly afflicted let me suggest the manner of their use. I place one over my stomach, one over the hepatic region, and one on my back. The effect is excellent. From the day I commenced their use have been slowly but surely improving, and am quite confident that by continuing I shall again be restored to my accustomed health."

TRI-CORNERED POLITICS.

Democrats, Republicans and Prohibs Get Together.

Triangular Debate at Madison, Wisconsin.

Watterson, McKinley and John P. St. John Talk to Twenty Thousand Eager Listeners.

Madison, Wis., July 29.—The assembly grounds at Monona Lake are crowded today as they have never been crowded before, and as they are never likely to be crowded again. The attraction is the triangular, republican-democratic-prohibition, debate which has been arranged by the managers of the assembly as the star event of the season.

The visitors began to arrive early in the week, and every train since Sunday night has added its quota to the motley crowd, for a more motley crowd as regards politics probably never got together before.

Every color in the political rainbow is represented, and every cause, even the lowliest, has its supporters in Madison to-day.

Yet, the greater number, of course, are naturally in sympathy with one or the other of the three spokesmen who have been chosen to wage battle for their respective parties—Gov. William McKinley representing the republicans, Henry Watterson representing the case of the democrats, and ex-Gov. John P. St. John championing the cause of the prohibitionists.

The management provided accommodations for twenty thousand, but long before the speaking commenced every inch of available space was filled, and many had to content themselves with positions where they could not hear and could only occasionally catch a glimpse of the speakers.

For some reason or other the people's party is not represented on the platform, but notwithstanding this there is a very liberal sprinkling of third party people in the audience, and they have taken advantage of the gathering to let members of the other parties know what they are doing, and what they intend to do in November.

To-morrow morning Gov. McKinley will start on a trip through the west, addressing meetings at Beatrice and Lincoln, Nebraska, before his return.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

"The Convict Ship" is the title of Mr. Clark Russell's just-completed book. Enthusiastic friends say it is the best story he has yet written.

Senator Berry, who is considered an Adonis in Arkansas, is a tall man of 51 years, with iron gray mustache, flowing beard and dark hair that inclines to curl.

Marshal McMahon, the gallant ex-President of France, although 82 years old, is as robust as at 50. He boasts that serious illness has never been his lot, and that only when wounded has he been confined to his bed.

Mrs. Osborne, a widow, has cleared $5,000 to $6,000 a year from her ranch near Salt Lake City. She raises vegetables. Lately she has added a chicken ranch and two incubators, and expects to clear $10,000 this year.

The Gand Duke Charles Theodore has a big practice as an amateur oculist at Meran, and his reception and operating rooms are crowded with patients, whom he treats free of charge. His Dukelets is of more use than most of his class.

Miss Cornwallis West, who was recently married to Prince Henry of Piess, is barely 17—just the age of her mother at the time of the latter's marriage. Mrs. Cornwallis West is still an exceedingly pretty and young-looking woman.

Of all the Confederate brigadiers surviving and in public life General Walthall, of Mississippi, recently re-elected senator, is said to be the most picturesque. He is tall and slender, with a mane of black hair that is striking in appearance.

General George P. Ihrie, who will be the general agent for the State of Washington at the world's fair, was on Grant's staff during the war. He has since had an extensive experience as examiner of mines in the United States and Alaska.

Josephine Werner, a New York confidence woman, with the expressive alias of "Weeping Caroline," has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment for obtaining money under false pretences. For thirty years she has bled the charitable by way of her tear ducts and false stories.

It has already been announced that Senator Brice is to occupy the old Cocoran mansion in Washington. The improvements being made in the edifice will cost $25,000, which to Washingtonians seems a great deal of money to use in that way, especially as only $5,000 of the amount is allowed by the estate, and the rest comes out of Mr. Brice's pocket. The rent will be $10,000 a year, besides taxes.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 233,115 bu and at five other western points 704,802 bu, aggregate 937,917 bu. On the corresponding Friday in 1891 the receipts were 1,121,664 bu, with only 55,315 bu of northwestern wheat.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were: Wheat 287,957 bu and flour to an aggregate of 400,000 bu. Export of corn 121,927 bu and of oats 31,650 bu.

English markets open very dull for wheat and firm for corn.

London and Liverpool Quotations Compared.

Beerbohm quotes American red winter wheat this morning at 30s 3d to arrive, which equals 91 1-2c per bushel. He quotes California 3-4. Difference in value 11 1-2c. The California is scarce and the red winter is plenty. That accounts for it. But he quote red winter in Liverpool at 6s 8 1-2d, which equals 96 1-2c against London at 91 1-2c. California in Liverpool is quoted at 7s to 7s 1d, which equals $1 02, a difference between California and red of 5 1-2c against 11 1-2c in London.

The Markets To-day.

American wheat markets opened and have ruled a little lower than yesterday's closing prices without important news or events. There is the usual chatter from other markets as to who are buyers and who are sellers, but it is of little account outside of the fellows who are doing it.

The cool temperature has chased the torrid atmosphere into the Atlantic, but it is not a factor of higher prices, and the markets close 5-8c lower in Chicago and about the same in New York.

Corn has been weak again, notwithstanding the efforts of the bulls to advance the market. A good many dealers believe corn is high enough compared with wheat. The market at Chicago closed 3-8c to 1-2c lower, and in New York 3-8c to 5-8c.

London and Paris are quoted as closing higher, but no one placed much reliance upon the report.

In Toledo the wheat market has been very quiet and prices have not changed much. There was more business in September than other futures. After only very moderate trading the market closed 1-8c for July and 1-4c for August and September lower.

On the call September sold at 79 1-2 to 79 3-8 and 79 1-2, closing at 79 1-2; October sold at 80 1-4. After the call July sold at 79 to 78 7-8 and closed at 79 1-8; sellers; September sold at 79 3-8 to 79 1-2 and closed at 79 1-4, sellers. Cash wheat was in active request and not so much August sold at 78 3-4 and closed at 79, doing in No. 3; No. 2 soft sold freely at 79 with a few sales at 78 7-8, closing at 79 bid; No. 3sold at 72 1-2 to 73 1-4; No. 4 soft at 68 1-2.

Corn, No. 2 at 49 1-4.

Rye, No. 2 soft at 68; No. 3 at 61 1-2; on the call No. 2 for August sold at 68.

Clover seed. On the call October sold at $5 30, a decline of 2 1-2c. Nothing reported after the call.

GREAT WHEAT CROP.

St. Paul, Minn., July 29.—There is a panic among Dakota farmers lest they be unable to harvest their great wheat crop, which is now being cut in the southern part of South Dakota.

Central South Dakota begins its wheat harvest in about a week or ten days and Huron farmers are especially anxious. It has been estimated that from 800 to 1,000 laborers are needed in each county in South Dakota east of the Missouri river.

This means about ten thousand laborers. Southern Minnesota needs help in the harvest field also, and North Dakota will begin harvesting in about two or three weeks. Altogether conservative estimates are that 40,000 laborers are needed within the next month in order to harvest the immense grain crop of the northwest.

The acreage is a little less than last year but the yield promises to be equally great if only the crop can be secured. In order to induce laborers to come to the relief of the wheat farmers of the northwest, all the railroads in this section have announced a special rate of $5 from this city to the Dakotas for farm laborers.

The farmers also promise good wages and abundant work, threshing following close on cutting, and giving many weeks' employment at an average of $2 a day.

The fact that a large part of last year's crop was lost through lack of sufficient farm help emphasizes the need of the present and Dakota and Minnesota send out a cry for help in the harvest fields. Steady employment can be had until late in the fall at good wages.

Duluth.

Duluth, July 29.—Boats are being taken to-day to load wheat to Buffalo next week at 3 1-4 cents.

Chicago.

Chicago, July 29.—Grain freights were again slow to-day, but shippers were making no particular effort to reduce rates below 2 cents on wheat.

The poor condition of Chicago corn is responsible for most of the present dullness in the grain mvement.

Buffalo.

Buffalo, July 29.—There is good demand for vessels, but the supply is rather short. Charters: Berlin, Allegheny, soft coal, Duluth, 45c; Ralph, hard coal, Duluth, 35c; Topeka, Milwaukee, 60c.

Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 29.—For the first time in three weeks the ore freight market is settled on rates, regarding which there is no question. Escanaba shippers are probably not getting as much tonnage as they could care for comfortably, but there is no talk of change in any of the different rates. Brokers all have coal cargoes for ever port on Lake Michigan, but Lake Superior supply is only about equal to demand.

Heavy Gale.

Chicago, July 29.—North gale is blowing over Lakes Michigan and Huron to-day. Dispatches from Lake Huron state that vessels are making harbors of refuge rapidly.

THE ELECTION LAWS.

Changes Made Since Last Spring.

Interesting Talk With Secretary King—What the Amendments Are.

Mayor Emmick has issued a proclamation, calling for a special election to be held August 5, for the purpose of electing a successor to R. P. Swain, resigned.

This election will be conducted under the Australian system, and this will be the first held under the many changes of the law as effected during the last session of the state legislature.

As to the legality of the Toledo election board, Secretary King addressed the following letter to Secretary of State Poorman:

Toledo, July 26, 1892.

Hon. C. L. Poorman, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—To fill a vacancy in the board of councilmen of this city, the mayor has just issued a proclamation for a special election, to be held August 5, 1892. As we understand the provisions of Senate bills 279 and 280 and House bill 855, which were passed April 18, 1892, in cities of the first class (which includes Toledo) the board of elections existing under the laws theretofore in force, is by virtue of the new law, continued in existence and duly authorized to discharge all the duties under said recent acts. By return mail kindly oblige by advising whether or not you agree in this construction of the acts.

Thanking you in advance for your kindly attention, I am, Yours truly,
HARRY E. KING,
Sec. of Board of Elections, Toledo, Ohio.

He received the following reply:

Columbus, Ohio, July 27, 1892.

H. E. King, Toledo, O.

Dear Sir:—Yours of July 26th received. In reply to same, I am of the opinion that the board of elections existing under the law is in force, and is the proper authorized parties to discharge the duties of the same. Yours respectfully,
C. L. POORMAN,
Secretary of State.

"Some important change in the election laws have been introduced since electors cast their last ballots," said Mr. King to a Bee this morning.

"In all counties containing a city of the first class, the city board of elections as constituted prior to April 8, 1892, is by the new law continued in full force, and with authority extended over all of the precincts of the county outside of the city. The same law as the elections governs such outside precincts except that no registration is necessary therein and no meeting of the precinct election board for organization. In outside precincts the board will appoint four judges and two clerks, irrespective of their being trustees or councilmen, or township or village clerks.

Nominating Certificates.

"The manner of certifying and filing nomination by convention or petition, remains the same.

"Nomination papers must be filed as follows: State officers not less than 30 days previous to the election; county, 20 days; district or circuit, 25 days; city, township or village, 10 days.

Ballots.

"While the general form of ballot in use at the elections of last fall and spring is retained, some very important changes have been made therein.

"The provisions as to name and secondary stub, party device, size of type, and official indorsement upon back of ballot, remain unchanged.

"The law requiring that the ballot shall be so printed as to give each elector a clear opportunity to designate by a cross mark in a large blank circular space, three-quarters of an inch in diameter, below the device and above the name of the party at the head of the ticket, or list of candidates, his choice of the party ticket and desire to vote for each and every candidate thereon; and by a cross mark in a blank enclosed space on the left and before the name of each candidate, his choice of particular candidate.

"The circle at the head of the ticket I mentioned will be surrounded by the words 'For a straight ticket, mark within this circle.'

"Heavy dark verticular lines separate the candidates of the respective parties, and both sides of the ballot are bordered by like lines.

The general provision as to another issuing and casting of ballots, etc., are substantially unchanged.

Marking the Ballots.

"Among the most important changes are those relating to marking of the ballots. The wards of the law are:

"'1. If the elector desire to vote a straight ticket, or in other words for each and every candidate of one party for whatever office nominated, he shall either (a) make a cross mark in the circular space below the device and above the name of the party at the head of the ticket; or, (b) make a cross mark on the left of and opposite the name of each and every candidate of such party in the blank space provided therefor.

"'2 If the elector desires to vote a mixed ticket, or, in other words, for candidates of different parties, he shall either (a) omit making a cross mark on the circular space above the name of any party, and make a cross mark in the blank space before the name of each candidate for whom he desires to vote, on whatever ticket he may be; or, (b) make a cross mark in the circular space above the name of a party, some of whose candidates he desires to vote for, and then make a cross mark before the name of any candidate of any other party for whom he may desire to vote; in which case, the cross mark in the circular space above the name of a party will cast the elector's vote for every candidate on the ticket of such party, except for offices for which candidates are marked on other party tickets, and the cross marks before the names of such candidates will cast the elector's vote for them: provided that where two or more persons for the same office are to be voted for in any precinct, as two or more representatives or other officers, and the nams of several candidates therefor appear on each party ticket grouped under the office for which all are running, the elector who has marked a ticket in the circular space at its head, and marked one or more of a group of candidates for such office on another ticket or tickets, must in addition to marking the ticket in the circular space at its head, also make a cross mark before each one of the group of candidates for such office for whom he desires to vote on the ticket thus marked; or instead of marking the candidates for such office he desires to vote for on the ticket marked by him, he may erase the names of candidates for such office whom he does not desire to vote for on the ticket thus marked by him to the number of candidates for such office marked by him on other party tickets, in which case his vote shall be counted for the candidates for such office not erased; and provided further, if an elector who has thus marked a party ticket in the circular space at the head thereof and marked one or more candidates on another ticket or tickets for an office for which there are more than one candidate on his own party ticket, fail or neglect to indicate either by individual marks or by erasures, as aforesaid, which of the several candidates for the same office on his own party ticket he desires to vote for, then and in such an event, the vote shall be counted only for the candidate or candidates for that office that have the distinguishing mark before his or their names.

"'If, in marking either a straight or mixed ticket as above defined, a cross mark is made in the circular space above the name of a party at the head of the ticket, and also one or more cross marks made before the name or names of candidates on the same ticket for offices for which candidates on other party tickets are not individually marked, such marks before the names of candidates on the ticket so marked, shall be treated as surplusage and ignored, and the ballot be counted for all the candidates on the ticket thus marked for offices for which no candidates on other tickets are marked; but this provision is subject to the exception in the proviso in he last paragraph, where two or more persons for the same office are grouped on party tickets. In the case of a question submitted, the elector shall make a cross mark in the blank space on the left of and before the answer which he desires to give. If the elector desires to vote for any person whose name does not appear on the ticket, he can substitute the name by writing it in black lead pencil or black ink in the proper place, and making a cross mark in the blank space at the left of the name so written. If the elector mark more names than there are persons to be elected to an office, or if, for any reason, it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for an office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office. No ballot shall be rejected for any technical error which does not make it impossible to determine the voter's choice.'

"The law also requires twice as many ballots to be furnished each precinct as there were votes cast at each preceding election.

"Constitutional amendments on other questions to be submitted to a vote of the people will hereafter require separate ballots to be cast in separate ballot boxes, to be presided over, however, by the same judges and clerks.

"The provisions of the new law as to counting the ballot are more rigid and exact than ever."

THE QUESTION OF PLAGIARISM.

Gems of Thought, It Appears, May be Stolen If Put in New Settings.

No one has ever been able to define what plagiarism is, and therefore it is unlikely that there should be any general agreement as to what makes a man liable to such a charge, says the London Telegraph. The question is perpetually recurring in other fields of literature as well as in homiletics, and no one has laid down any scientific principle of sufficient clearness to decide all disputes.

It cannot be that a man who is indebted to another for an idea is guilty of theft if he adapts it for his own purpose; for, if such appropriation be fraud, nearly all modern writers have committed unpardonable sins against the ancients. They may not have known everything "down in Jove," but the range of literary and speculative ideas was remarkably extensive in Greece, and if we are going to judge those of our own writers—to confine ourselves only to our own nationality—who have owed inspiration to Athens, we shall have to condemn a good many illustrious names, Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope—whose withers will be unwrung? A short time ago a critic took occasion to draw up a list of instances in which the poet laureate had adopted thoughts and expressions from his predecessors. It was wholly the work of supererogation, for Lord Tennyson would be the first to admit the debt which he, in common with other poets, owes to Homer and Virgil. Classical phrases are taken wholesale, as every student knows; witness such lines as "This way and that dividing the swift mind," and "She could not draw the quiet night into her blood"—the last a capital instance, for it assimilates and improves upon the original.

It is not freshness of thought alone, but also freshness of treatment, which gives an author the right to call his work original. If we take the supreme instance of Shakespeare we see at once that the real question in many cases of this kind is not where the writer got the idea, but what he has done with it. A poet, a novelist, an essayist, a preacher can take a hint in a crude state and so transform it by the associations and characteristics of his own mind that he is justly entitled to claim it as his own. He cannot be called a plagiarist at all events, for many of these so-called thefts are unconscious reminiscences, unrecognized as such, which are worked into the texture of a man's own thoughts and made instinct with his own personality. In novels and romances, again, we have numerous instances of the same free exchange; no one ought to call it by a harder name unless he is able to discount the frequency of literary coincidences or possesses a higher originality than that to which most of us can attain. Such reflections, no doubt, were present in the minds of the Congregational Union when they absolved Mr. Woods from the charges made against him. He was no plagiarist, because, while from Dr. Dyke's valuable store he selected a few homiletic gems, he presented them to his congregation at Clunton sparkling in some original setting of his own.

GAINS OF MONTE CARLO.

Its Gambling Tables Earned 25,000,000 Francs for the Owners.

Important changes were made at the last meeting of the stockholders of the Societe des Baines de Mer, the euphonious name used by the owners of the gambling tables of Monte Carlo, says a Nice dispatch to the New York Tribune. It is reported that the net gains of last year reached the enormous sum of 25,000,000 francs, 2,500,000 more than in 1890. A dividend of 235 francs was declared upon each bond of the par value of 500 francs. The bonds to-day are quoted at 2,300 francs. The directors also decided to add 100,000 francs to the pension fund for the 1,100 officials connected in various ways with the bank.

Prince Roland Bonaparte, formerly one of the principal owners of the Monte Carlo stock, has now withdrawn from the company. It will be remembered that the prince married a daughter of M. Blanc. At her death he sold the stock which he had received by her will. He also desired at the same time to dispose of the 16,500 shares which went by will to his daughter. The guardians of the young woman, however, succeeded in preventing the sale until a short time ago, when the prince secured the privilege of disposing of them. The sale amounted to more than 40,000,000 francs. Baron Camillo Blanc and Prince Radziwill, the chief stockholders, purchased most of the stock formerly held by Bonaparte, so that they now practically own the place. M. Bonnand, Prince Roland's representative in the company, failed to be re-elected as a member of the council. M. Thefillant, who has acted as director-general of the company, has also retired. He has been succeeded by Count Bertora.

A NEW WRINKLE.

A rather impecunious party met a friend who was sporting a new suit of clothes.

"Hello! "exclaimed the former, "where did you get those new clothes?"

"Hush! it's a secret. I'll tell it to you if you'll promise not to give it away."

"I'll promise."

"You know there is a new doctor in town?"

"Yes."

"Well, I sit in his office every morning to make the public believe that he has got a patient."—Texas Siftings.

CITY NEWS.

There will be a National Union reunion at Put-in-Bay next week.

The best of skilled labor employed by the Toledo Laundry Co. Phone 438.

"Baby Ruth" safety pins are announced as the latest fad. Let's get a dozen.

Wm. Fuller, of Henry county, has been received at the asylum for treatment.

With soldiers coming and going, Toledo presents a very military appearance this week.

Mr. D. B. Smith, of Toledo, and others will conduct Episcopal services at Bryan next Sunday morning.

J. W. Maloney has been appointed roadmaster of the T. & O. C. road between Toledo and Bucyrus.

Reports now coming in from the neighborhood make note of shocks received by lightning in many instances.

J. C. Hisey, of Bryan, has been appointed as an attendant at the asylum, and will soon move his family to Toledo.

A large party of Toledoans will leave to-morrow for a trip through the Thousand Islands. Judge Millard will be one of the crowd.

Uncle George Reynolds is a candidate for re-election as infirmary director, and suggests that the more contestants appear the better for his cause.

The funeral of the late D. W. Fuller was held yesterday at Elyria, the services being in charge of King Solomon lodge, F. and A. M., of which lodge deceased was a member. Rev. C. S. Ayes, of Norwalk, officiated.

Up to the hour of going to press, the anticipated cold wave had not put in an appearance. It may be along later, however, and it is probably not abusing confidence to say it will be welcomed.

A grand excursion will be given on the steamer City of Toledo Wednesday evening, July 27, and Saturday evening, July 30, from dock foot of Madison street, at 8 o'clock, returning at 11:30. Three hours on Lake Erie. Music by the celebrated City of Toledo orchestra. Fare, 50c.

At a meeting of the St. Louis branch No. 17, Catholic Knights of Ohio, a committee was appointed to wait upon Dr. Richard Whiteford to address the members of St. Joseph's parish at the next regular meeting, explaining to them the good work and encourage them to join the flourishing young order.

Some repairs are needed very badly on the Huron street electric line.

Toledo Knights Templar will go in goodly numbers to the Denver conclave.

Election to fill the vacancy in the council from the Seventh ward occurs August 5. Make a note of it, voters.

The funeral of Mrs. Amelia M. Landis was largely attended from the industrial school building, yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Williams officiated.

Capt. James Austin, of Toledo division, is putting the boys in shape to present their silent drill at the Kansas City K. P. encampment. It will astonish the natives.

Weeds abound in many localities about the city, and are an eye sore to the people in general. The street commissioner is too busy with the board of revision to give much attention to this kind of work.

The Lucas Horticultural society will hold its regular August meeting at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Tamsworth, half a mile west of Waterville, on Wednesday, August 3. Conveyances will meet trains at depot. A full attendance is desired.

Bogus White Lead and adulterated paints would have no sale did they not afford dealers a larger profit than

Strictly Pure White Lead

The man who best guards his own interests is never persuaded to buy paint that is said to be "just as good," or "better," than Strictly Pure White Lead. The following brands are standard and always strictly pure:

ANCHOR (Cincinnati)
ARMSTRONG & McKELVY (Pittsburgh)
BEYMER-BAUMAN (Pittsburgh)
COLLIER (St. Louis)
CORNELL (Buffalo)
DAVIS-CHAMBERS (Pittsburgh)
ECKSTEIN (Cincinnati)
FAHNESTOCK (Pittsburgh)
MORLEY (Cleveland)
RED SEAL (St. Louis)
SHIPMAN (Chicago)
SOUTHERN (St. Louis and Chicago)

The National Lead Co. manufacture a line of colors to color strictly pure White Lead any shade wanted.

Pure White Lead Tinting Colors

They are put up in small packages; one pound being sufficient to tint twenty-five pounds of Lead. This makes the best paint that it is possible to put on a building.

If you are going to paint, it will pay you to send to us for a book containing information that may save you many a dollar; it will only cost you a postal card to do so.

HOUSE PAINTING AND PAPER HANGING

IN ITALY
Before they got Sapolio.
the proverb ran—"The pan says to the pot, Keep off or you'll smutch me."

If your grocer sends you anything in place of SAPOLIO, send it back and insist upon having just what you ordered. SAPOLIO always gives satisfaction. On floors, tables and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans and metals it has no equal. Everything shines after it, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.
